Powering Landmark Achievements

Cities have been at the heart of social and economic growth and change. The urban environment stimulates interactions that promote commerce, shape cultures and foster art. Architect, engineering and planning firms are at the heart of urban environments as they apply their creativity and expertise to empower cities to be attractive, livable, prosperous, and healthy places for businesses, governments and people.

McKissack & McKissack understands the complex array of business, economic and social factors that influence the design, planning and construction of buildings, monuments, museums, schools, and urban infrastructure projects. For the last 25 years, McKissack has transformed architectural and engineering plans into inspiring realities that withstand the test of time for communities and businesses.

Combining high-quality talent with specialized design and management capabilities, McKissack is an essential partner committed to helping our clients envision and build urban projects with agility and confidence.
