

Uzi Rebhun (Ph.D.) Professor and Head, Division of Jewish Demography and Statistics, the A. Harman Institute of Contemporary Jewry, The Hebrew University of Jerusalem. He holds the Shlomo Argov Chair in Israel-Diaspora Relations. His areas of interest are Jewish migration, Jewish identification, the Jewish family, Israel-Diaspora relations, and population projections. His works mainly focus on American Jews and the Israeli population. His current research project explores the emigration and settlement of Israeli Jews in Germany. Rebhun's most recent books include "American Israelis: Migration, Transnationalism, and Diasporic Identity" (with Lilach Lev Ari, Brill, 2010); "The Wandering Jew in America" (Academic Studies Press, 2011); and "Jews and the American Religious Landscape" (Columbia University Press, 2016).