Empowering Voters. Defending Democracy.

The League of Women Voters of New Jersey is celebrating 103 years of defending democracy and empowering voters. The League was officially founded in 1920, six months before the 19th amendment was ratified and women won the right to vote. Formed by the suffragists of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, the League began as a “mighty political experiment” designed to help 20 million women carry out their new responsibilities as voters.

We believe in the power of women to create a more perfect democracy. For over 100 years we have been a nonpartisan, activist, grassroots organization that believes voters should play a critical role in democracy. This Citizen’s Guide to Government is one of the resources we provide to help voters have a powerful voice in their government.

VOTING IN NEW JERSEY

REGISTRATION

WHO MAY REGISTER TO VOTE

To register in New Jersey you must be a US citizen, at least 17 years old (but may not vote until reaching the age of 18) and reside at your present address for at least 30 days. You are not eligible to register to vote if you have been adjudged mentally incompetent. You are not eligible to register to vote if you are incarcerated due to a felony conviction under state or federal law. You have the right to register and vote if you are on parole or probation. You have the right to register and vote upon release from prison.

WHEN TO REGISTER

One must be registered to vote at least 21 days before the election.

HOW AND WHERE TO REGISTER

- ★ Register to vote online at Vote411.org, lwvnj.org, or vote.nj.gov.
- ★ In person, register with your Municipal Clerk or county Commissioner of Registration/Superintendent of Elections.
- ★ By mail registration forms are available at motor vehicle agencies, public assistance offices, most libraries, Municipal Clerk and county Commissioner of Registration offices. Copies of the registration form may be downloaded and printed at www.lwvnj.org or vote.nj.gov.
- ★ Call your county Commissioner of Registration/Superintendent of Elections to follow up on the status of your registration.

WHEN TO RE-REGISTER

Registration is permanent but you must re-register if you

- ★ Change your name: You are entitled to vote only in the next election by signing your registration sheet at the polls with both your previous and new name. After that, you must re-register in your new name.
- ★ Change your address: You must re-register and check off “address change” on the form. If you have moved within the county since you registered to vote and have not re-registered you have the right to vote by provisional ballot after completing an affirmation statement (See page 7). Your provisional ballot serves as a registration form.

VOTING

WHEN TO VOTE: ELECTION DAY

- ★ General Elections: The first Tuesday after the first Monday in November to elect certain national, state, county and municipal officials.
- ★ Primary Elections: The first Tuesday after the first Monday in June to nominate party candidates for the General Election, and to elect state and county committeemen/women.
- ★ Municipal Elections: Held with General Election unless municipality has a nonpartisan form of government. Those elections are held on the second Tuesday in May.
- ★ School Board Elections: Most are held on General Election Day in November; a few municipalities hold them in April.
- ★ Fire District Elections: The third Saturday in February to elect fire commissioners and approve budgets in some municipalities.
- ★ Special Elections: Held for certain types of referenda.

WHEN TO VOTE: IN-PERSON EARLY VOTING

All registered voters can cast their ballot in person, using a voting machine, during a nine day period prior to General Election Day and during a three day period prior to Primary Election Day. Each New Jersey county, depending on its size, designates a minimum of 3 to 10 voting locations for in-person early voting. These locations and hours differ. Please visit Vote411.org to learn more about in-person early voting options.

VOTE BY MAIL BALLOT

Vote by mail ballots are available for any registered voter for any election. You do not need to have a reason to request a vote by mail ballot, but you must complete an application. Military and overseas vote by mail ballots are available by completing the same application.

HOW TO OBTAIN AND USE A VOTE BY MAIL BALLOT

A voter may vote by mail by completing an application for a vote by mail ballot and returning the application to the County Clerk. To receive a ballot by mail, the application must be received by the County Clerk no later than seven days prior to the election. A voter may also apply in person to the County Clerk until 3:00 p.m. the day before the election.

- ★ The application is available from your County Clerk and can also be found online at www.lwvnj.org or vote.nj.gov. Sign the application with the same signature used at the polls and return it to your County Clerk. The County Clerk cannot accept faxed or emailed copies of the application, unless you are a military or overseas voter, since an original signature is required.
- ★ Voters have two vote by mail options on the application form: either for all future elections or for one election only. If you select to receive a ballot for one specific election, you must reapply for future elections. If you select all future elections, you will receive a ballot for every election (except primary elections in some cases) unless you notify the County Clerk in writing that you no longer wish to receive mail ballots or you do not vote by mail for four consecutive years.
- ★ If you have chosen to vote by mail in all future elections, but are not affiliated with a political party, you will no longer be sent a mail-in ballot for primary elections, unless you declare a party. Unaffiliated voters may still choose to affiliate with a political party and vote in-person on the day of the primary election.
- ★ After approval of the application, a ballot and instructions will be mailed to you. If you apply in person within the seven day period before the election, the ballot will be given to you at that time.
- ★ If returning your completed vote by mail ballot in person, it must be received by the County Board of Elections before close of polls on Election Day. If returning your ballot using a ballot drop box, it must be in the drop box before close of polls on Election Day. If returning it by mail, it must be postmarked no later than Election Day and received no later than 144 hours (6 days) after the close of polls.
- ★ If you have applied for and/or received a vote by mail ballot, you may not vote on the machine at your polling place for that election. You may vote using a provisional ballot.

HOW TO VOTE

- ★ You must vote in person unless you applied for a vote by mail ballot.
- ★ Operating instructions are printed on the sample ballot and are available at the polls.
- ★ You have two minutes to vote. If you need help, ask a poll worker. You may change your selections until you cast your ballot.
- ★ In any election you may “write in” your own choice for a particular office. Request instructions for how to “write in” a candidate from poll workers.

- ★ If you are in line at your polling place when the polls close you have a right to vote.
- ★ If an election official challenges your eligibility and you are prevented from voting, you have the right to a hearing before a superior court judge at the county courthouse on Election Day. The judge will rule on your eligibility at the hearing.

SAMPLE BALLOT

Sample ballots are mailed to all registered voters one week before each election. They are not provided for fire district elections. The sample ballot is verification of your registration; contact your County Clerk or Board of Elections if you do not receive one.

Sample ballots contain the following information:

- ★ Location of your polling place
- ★ Hours polls are open
- ★ Public questions
- ★ Offices to be voted on, candidates names, district and municipality
- ★ Operating instructions for the voting machines
- ★ Instructions for how to “write in” a candidate

PROVISIONAL BALLOTS

Provisional ballots are paper ballots that are used at the polling place under the following circumstances:

- ★ If your registration information is missing or is not complete in the poll book.
- ★ You moved from your registered address to another one in the same county and did not re-register at your new address.
- ★ You are a first-time voter and when you registered to vote you did not provide proper identification or the information you provided could not be verified and you did not bring it on Election Day. For your provisional ballot to be counted, you have until the close of business on the second day after the election to provide your county elections officials with the required ID information.
- ★ You requested a vote by mail ballot, but you either did not receive it or you did not cast it.

After you give your provisional ballot to a poll worker, you must be given a Board of Elections number to call to find out if your ballot was counted, and if not, why not. Provisional ballots are not counted at the polling place, but are taken for verification and counting by the county Board of Elections. If the ballot was not counted because you were not correctly registered to vote, the provisional ballot affirmation statement will serve as your voter registration for future elections.

PARTY AFFILIATION

In New Jersey you may declare a party affiliation when registering to vote, but you are not required to do so.

- ★ Primary Elections: In a primary, you may vote for only one party's candidates. Currently, only the Democratic and Republican parties qualify for primary elections. If you are an unaffiliated voter, you may declare at the polls the day of a primary election.
- ★ You retain this party affiliation unless you change your party affiliation using the online voter registration form or by submitting a party affiliation form. Party affiliation forms can be found online at www.lwvnj.org or at county election officials' offices and must be returned to your Commissioner of Registration or Municipal Clerk at least 55 days before the next primary election.
- ★ General Elections: You need not vote a straight party ticket but may select your choice for a particular office from any party's candidate (a split ticket). You need not vote for a complete slate.

CONDUCT OF ELECTIONS

Responsible for administration of elections:

- ★ Each county Board of Elections is comprised of two Democrats and two Republicans, appointed by the governor upon nomination by party officials for a term of two years. The county Board of Elections has overall responsibility for administration of elections in each election district, setting up voting machinery and settling questions related to the election process.
- ★ Each district Board of Elections is comprised of two Democrats and two Republicans, appointed by the county Board of Elections for a term of one year. The District Board is responsible for the conduct of the election at the polling place.

POLITICAL PARTIES

New Jersey statutes (Title 19) recognizes political parties that receive at least ten percent of the total vote cast for members of the General Assembly in the last election (odd-numbered years). Currently only the Republican and Democratic parties meet this threshold. These parties use a primary election system to select nominees for the November General Election and to elect members to the party committees.

Other political parties, often called third parties, are recognized by the New Jersey Courts as common law political parties. These parties must 1) incorporate, 2) have party officers, 3) have bylaws, 4) have a distinct political philosophy and 5) nominate candidates on a regular basis for the November General Elections. These parties select officers, party committee members and nominate party candidates to run for office according to each party's bylaws. Citizens can register as members of common law parties and donate to them in accordance with current campaign finance limits.

The Republican and Democratic parties have state and national offices.

COMMUNICATING WITH ELECTED OFFICIALS

LETTERS AND EMAILS

- ★ Effective letters and emails are those that you personally take the time to write, rather than a template requiring only a signature.
- ★ Limit each correspondence to a single subject or piece of legislation.
- ★ Identify the bill by number and title.
- ★ Give your full name and address and identify yourself as a registered voter in the legislator's district and/or as a member of an organization interested in the legislation.
- ★ State your position in your introductory paragraph (support, oppose, wish to amend). Be factual and support your position with information about how legislation may affect citizens.
- ★ Letters and emails on federal legislation should be sent to your congressman/woman's Washington, DC address.
- ★ Contact information can be found under Members of Congress and Members of the New Jersey Legislature in this guide.

Dear Representative/Dear Assemblyman (woman) Jones:

TELEPHONE CALLS

- ★ As a vote approaches on an issue, most representatives are interested in constituents' positions. A phone call is a quick way to express your position to your representative and to clarify his/her position on an upcoming bill.
- ★ As with written communication, identify the piece of legislation you are calling about and in a concise and factual manner state your position. Ask your legislator for his/her position.
- ★ Listen as well as speak.
- ★ Offer to send additional information supporting your opinion.
- ★ Telephone numbers can be found under Members of Congress and Members of the New Jersey Legislature in this guide.

SAMPLE LETTER

Dear Senator _____:

Re: Jobs from Housing and Economic Development Bond Act
 A1442/1443, S202/203

I am concerned about affordable housing for all New Jersey citizens and believe that government at all levels should make sufficient funds available for housing assistance programs. As your constituent, I urge you to support the Jobs from Housing and Economic Development Bond Act as a means of meeting a portion of the need.

While providing housing for more than 30,000 New Jerseyans, the $290 million dollar bond issue will create many new construction, retail and manufacturing jobs throughout the state. It will generate tax revenue for state and local governments.

I hope that I can count on you as my senator to support this important legislation. If you wish to speak with me, I can be reached at (phone number). Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT

Each of the three branches of the federal government — the executive, the legislative and the judicial — has powers granted to it by the Constitution which empower each to impose checks and balances on the others.

Executive Branch The executive branch of the United States government includes the president and vice president, the executive office of the president, the executive departments and various agencies, commissions and corporations. The President of the United States is the nation's chief executive. The president enforces federal laws and appoints high federal officials and United States diplomats who serve at the president's pleasure. The president commands the armed forces and conducts foreign affairs. The president may recommend legislation to the Congress, signs into law or vetoes legislation passed by both houses of the Congress and may call Congress into special session.

The Vice President of the United States becomes president if the president dies, resigns or is removed from office and becomes acting president if the president is unable to perform the duties of the office. The only official duty the Constitution grants the vice president is that of presiding officer of the Senate where he/she casts tie-breaking votes.

The Executive Office of the President consists of a group of federal agencies that immediately serve the president by aiding in developing and implementing the programs and policies of the president. Executive offices can be established by the president or by Congress. However, the tenure and durability of each executive office is dependent on its usefulness to the president. Therefore, executive offices are subject to change. For a complete list of current executive offices visit www.whitehouse.gov/administration/eop/.

The executive departments are the administrative arm of the national government. These 15 departments are Agriculture, Commerce, Defense, Education, Energy, Health and Human Services, Homeland Security, Housing and Urban Development, Interior, Justice, Labor, State, Transportation, Treasury, and Veterans Affairs. The department heads (secretaries), appointed by the president and confirmed by the Senate, become the Cabinet and serve at the pleasure of the president. The president may grant other officials cabinet status.

Legislative Branch The two houses of Congress, the Senate and the House of Representatives, meet in separate chambers in the Capitol in Washington, DC. There are 100 members of the Senate, two from each state. The House of Representatives consists of 435 seats with each state's portion determined by the federal census every ten years. Representatives serve terms of two years, all 435 members being elected in even numbered years. Senators' terms are six years with one third being elected every even numbered year.

Congress writes federal laws and has the power to investigate matters of public concern and monitor federal agencies and programs. It declares war, regulates interstate and foreign commerce, sets federal taxes, and coins money. Only the House can initiate tax legislation and bring a charge of impeachment. The Senate must approve federal appointments and treaties and sits as a court of impeachment.

Each body elects its own leadership — majority and minority leaders, party whips and conference chairs. Although the vice president is the president of the Senate, the Senate majority leader is the most powerful member of the Senate. In the House of Representatives, the speaker is the most powerful individual and is second in line to become president. The work of the Senate and House is conducted in committees or subcommittees. Both the Senate and House of Representatives depend on a large support staff for committee and individual office operations.

Judicial Branch The judicial branch of the federal government consists of the Supreme Court, Federal Courts of Appeals, Federal District Courts and several specialized courts (United States Claims Court, Court of International Trade and Tax Court of the United States). Federal courts handle both criminal and civil cases involving the Constitution or federal laws, cases in which the United States government is one of the parties, cases between individuals or groups from different states, and cases involving other countries or their citizens. District courts are the federal courts of original jurisdiction. Courts of Appeals try federal cases on appeal from district courts and review decisions made by some federal agencies.

The Supreme Court of the United States is the highest court in the nation. It has original jurisdiction in cases affecting ministers of foreign states and in cases in which a state is a party. It has appellate jurisdiction — authority to review the decisions of lower federal courts — when a law of the United States has been held invalid by a state court or when one of the parties claims denial of a right under the federal Constitution.

NEW JERSEY STATE GOVERNMENT

The New Jersey Constitution was ratified on November 4, 1947 and became effective on January 1, 1948. This replaced the Constitution of 1844, which had replaced the original Constitution of 1776.

Each of the three branches of the state government — the executive, the legislative and the judicial — has powers granted to it by the New Jersey Constitution which allow each to impose checks and balances on the other two. Trenton has been New Jersey's capital since 1790. The statehouse and the statehouse annex, located on West State Street, house the legislature, the governor's office and some executive offices. Other government offices are nearby.

Executive Branch The executive branch is composed of the governor, the governor's staff, the 15 executive departments and many authorities, boards and commissions. The governor as chief executive is responsible for faithfully executing state laws and appoints, with the advice and consent of the Senate, executive department heads, judgeships (including the State Supreme Court), county prosecutors, county boards of election and taxation, and many policy-making and advisory boards and commissions. The governor has the power of dismissal of most appointees. The governor may recommend legislation to the legislature, may call the legislature into special session, signs into law legislative action passed by both houses and has veto powers (absolute veto, conditional veto and line item veto on appropriation bills). The governor may grant pardons and may suspend and remit fines and forfeitures. The governor is the commander-in-chief of the militia and the only person with the authority to call up the National Guard.

A vacancy in the office of the governor results in succession by the lieutenant governor, with the president of the New Jersey Senate next in line.

The governor sets the overall policy and priorities for the administration. The governor's staff deals with the media, scheduling, speech writing, research, policy decisions and maintains liaisons with department heads, legislative leaders and party leaders. The two principal members of the governor's staff are the chief of staff and the chief counsel to the governor who is the legal advisor on legislative proposals. The executive departments implement policies set by the governor. The departments also have the primary responsibility for writing the rules and regulations and administering laws passed by the Legislature. Serving all the administrative agencies and departments, the Office of Administrative Law is an agency of the executive branch with two functions — to conduct administrative hearings into disputes between citizens and agencies or departments and to supervise the process of rule making (implementation of legislation) by the executive branch departments and agencies.

Legislative Branch The New Jersey Legislature consists of the Senate and the General Assembly. All legislative sessions, many committee hearings and most public hearings are held in the Statehouse. The Senate and General Assembly chambers each have visitor galleries. There are 40 senators, one from each legislative district and 80 members of the Assembly (two from each legislative district). Senators' terms are four years except the term following the federal census which is two years. The full Senate is up for election at the same time. Assembly members' terms are two years, all 80 seats being elected in November of odd numbered years.

The Senate writes state laws, must confirm appointments of the governor and acts as the Court of Impeachment. The state budget (an appropriations bill) is by custom a Senate measure. The Assembly writes state laws, originates all bills for raising revenue and has the sole power to vote impeachment charges.

Each house chooses its own officers and determines the rules of its own proceedings. The Senate elects a president while the presiding officer elected by the General Assembly is called the speaker. Each party elects its own legislative leaders in each house — a majority and assistant majority leader, a minority and assistant minority leader. There are four partisan staffs, one for each party in each house. The Office of Legislative Services provides professional nonpartisan staff to provide bill drafting, legal advice, budgetary and audit information, research and analysis, staffing for legislative committees and study commissions.

The work of the Senate and Assembly is conducted in standing committees. After being introduced, a bill is numbered and usually referred to the appropriate standing committee. Following release from committee, each legislative house debates and may amend the bill and the vote is taken. Each legislature is constituted for a term of two years, split into two annual sessions. Bills introduced in the first-year session, but not passed by both houses, carry over into the second session. All unfinished business expires at the end of the second session. When in session the legislature usually convenes twice a week. There is no constitutional limit or requirement on the number of days the legislature must meet.

Judicial Branch The judicial branch of state government consists of the New Jersey Supreme Court, Superior Court, Tax Court, and Municipal Courts.

The Superior Court is divided into three divisions: Appellate, Law and Chancery. The Appellate Division receives appeals from the Law and Chancery divisions, from lower courts and from decisions of state agencies. The Law Division contains a Criminal Division handling all indictments and accusations in criminal cases and a Civil Division handling civil cases, appeals from municipal courts and probate matters. There is a Special Civil Part for contracts, landlord/tenant disputes and small claims cases. In the Law Division a single judge presides over a trial court, either with or without a jury. The Chancery Division contains a General Equity Part, a Probate Part, and a Family Division Part. General Equity cases involve issues of labor injunctions, foreclosures, and dissolution of a corporation or partnership. The Probate Part hears cases including challenges to wills, appointments of administrators or conservators, requests for declarations of incapacity and appointment of guardians. The Family Part includes juvenile delinquency, juveniles and families in crisis, domestic violence, child abuse, adoption, paternity, divorce and custody of children. In the Chancery Division a single judge presides over the trials which are generally without juries.

The Tax Court, established by the Legislature in 1979, is a court of limited jurisdiction to review state tax and local property tax assessments.

Municipal courts hear cases involving minor criminal offenses such as simple assault, trespassing, and shoplifting. Municipal courts also handle motor vehicle violations and violations of municipal ordinances. A municipal court may also try some types of criminal cases where the accused waives the right to indictment and trial by jury. In municipal court the judge handles cases alone without a jury.

New Jersey's highest court is the Supreme Court. It serves as the court of last resort for cases involving constitutional questions or dissent in the Appellate Division. Under the state constitution the Supreme Court administers all the courts in New Jersey. The chief justice assigns judges, oversees the finances of courts, supervises clerks and support personnel, conducts investigations to review complaints against the courts, and assembles statistics for the judicial system. The Supreme Court admits attorneys to practice and disciplines them. It promulgates the rules that govern the administration, practice and procedure in all courts. The Administrative Office of the Courts was created as a management and control agency to assist the chief justice and the Court. The chief justice appoints and supervises the director of the Administrative Office of the Courts.

NEW JERSEY LEGISLATIVE PROCESS

How a Bill Becomes Law: Citizens, interest groups, or elected officials may propose a new law. The legislative process begins when a legislator decides to draft and sponsor a bill, sometimes with co-sponsors. The bill is introduced when the Senate Secretary or Assembly Clerk reads aloud the bill's number, sponsor, and title during a legislative session (the first reading). The bill is printed, released to the public, and either assigned to a committee or sent to a second reading.

Then the committee chair may schedule hearings and review the bill, sometimes making changes (amendments). The public may speak about the bill during these open meetings. If not considered, the bill "remains in committee." If the committee approves the bill, it is reported to the House and its title is read again (the second reading) where it may again be amended.

When scheduled by the Senate President or Assembly Speaker, the bill is given a third reading, debated, and may be voted on. The second and third reading may occur on the same day only by an emergency vote of three-fourths of the members. A bill passes if it receives a majority of votes (at least 21 in the Senate or 41 in the General Assembly).

The bill follows a similar path in the second house. After both houses agree on the bill, it is sent to the governor. If the second house amends the bill, it is returned to the first house for a vote on the changes. Both Assembly and Senate must approve a bill in identical form.

The bill then goes to the governor who may either sign it, return it to the Legislature with proposed changes (conditional veto), veto single lines (where money is appropriated), or veto it absolutely. If the governor takes no action, after 45 days the bill becomes law. A vetoed bill can still become law by a two-thirds vote override (27 in the Senate and 54 in the Assembly).

Statewide Public Questions: New Jersey statewide public questions (also known as ballot questions) are either constitutional amendments or general obligation bond questions. Both types of public questions ask voters for a simple yes or no vote. General obligation bonds, when approved by the voters, constitute public debt and must be approved by the New Jersey Legislature and the Governor before being placed on the ballot. Constitutional amendments do not require the Governor's signature before being placed on the ballot. Instead they require approval by the Legislature with a 60% vote in one legislative session or with a simple majority vote in two successive sessions. The League of Women Voters of New Jersey provides analyses of statewide public questions at www.lwvnj.org.

LEGISLATIVE SESSIONS

The New Jersey State Constitution provides that each Legislature is constituted for a term of two years, split into two annual sessions. The two-year legislative term begins at noon on the second Tuesday in January of each even-numbered year. At the end of the second year, all unfinished business expires.

Each House sets its own meeting schedule. Typically, each House holds an average of 40 sessions a year, usually on Mondays and Thursdays - other days may be used for committee meetings or public hearings. A typical session day consists of committee meetings in the morning, party conferences in the afternoon, followed by floor sessions. Committee meetings and floor sessions are open to the public.

GOVERNOR LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR

Term of Office Four years. The governor may not serve more than two successive terms. The current governor's term ends January 2026.

Qualifications for Governor At least 30 years of age, a citizen of the United States for 20 years, a resident of New Jersey for seven years prior to election (unless absent on public business of the United States or New Jersey).

Qualifications for Lieutenant Governor Qualifications for lieutenant governor are the same as the qualifications for governor.

Governor Annual Salary $175,000

Lieutenant Governor Annual Salary $141,000

Governor Functions Responsible for faithful execution of state laws; appoints, with the advice and consent of the Senate, executive department heads, judges, county prosecutors, county boards of election and taxation and many policy-making and advisory boards and commissions; has the power of dismissal of most appointees; may recommend legislation to the legislature; may call the legislature into special session; signs into law legislative action passed by both houses and has veto powers; may grant pardons and reprieves; may suspend and remit fines and forfeitures; is the commander-in-chief of the militia; is the only person with authority to call up the National Guard.

Lieutenant Governor Functions Serves as acting governor during periods when the governor is absent from the state or unable to serve and would become governor in the event of a vacancy in the office of governor. The governor may appoint the lieutenant governor to serve as the head of a state department or agency (with the exception of Attorney General) and performs other duties assigned by the governor.

COUNTY GOVERNMENT

New Jersey has 21 counties, each governed by a Board of Chosen Freeholders. The county government is responsible for the construction and maintenance of county roads and bridges and the operation of a county jail. It may operate many programs such as police and fire training academies and emergency services, maintain park and recreation systems, administer programs for special groups, and usually assumes public health functions.

Freeholder boards consist of three to nine members, elected at large for terms of three years on a staggered basis. Its members are policy makers and administrators. One freeholder, selected as director of the board, presides over meetings and has a voice and a vote in board proceedings. The board typically operates through committees which administer the operations of county government.

The Optional County Charter Law enacted in 1972 allows for four additional forms of county government — county manager, county executive, county supervisor and board president. All options allow a freeholder board of five, seven, or nine members elected at-large, by districts, or a combination of the two with concurrent or staggered three year terms. All forms provide the voters with procedures for initiative, referendum and recall of elected officials.

- ★ The county manager form has a manager appointed by the freeholders as chief executive and administrative official. The manager appoints and removes department heads, negotiates contracts, prepares the budget and advises the freeholder board.
- ★ The county executive plan has an elected chief executive who appoints a business administrator as well as heads of county boards and commissions.
- ★ The county supervisor and board president options are variations which give greater authority to the freeholder board over administrative matters.

Currently Union County has a county manager system and Atlantic, Bergen, Essex, Hudson and Mercer have chosen a county executive plan.

County Officials

Sharing in county functions are several elected and state-appointed officials. Each county has three constitutional officers — sheriff, county clerk and surrogate.

- ★ The sheriff, elected for a three-year term, is responsible for operation of the courts and may operate the county jail.
- ★ The county clerk, elected for a five-year term, is responsible for election materials, county records, registering deeds and processing applications for passports and naturalization papers.

- ★ The surrogate, elected for a five-year term, probates wills, supervises minors' trust accounts, handles incompetency filings and rules on administrative matters in uncontested probates and guardianships.
- ★ Counties with populations over 250,000 may establish by referendum a register of deeds and mortgages who is elected for a five-year term. Only Essex and Hudson counties have this office.
- ★ County Superintendent of Schools, appointed by and responsible to the New Jersey Commissioner of Education, monitors the public school laws and expenditure of state school aid.
- ★ The county prosecutor, appointed by the governor and responsible to the New Jersey Attorney General, is the chief criminal law enforcement officer.
- ★ The Board of Elections, composed of two Democrats and two Republicans appointed by the governor, supervises voter registration, keeps records of eligible voters, provides voting machines and settles certain controversies having to do with elections.

MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT

New Jersey is divided into 565 incorporated municipalities for purposes of local government; there are no unincorporated areas. New Jersey has a strong “home rule” history — a reliance on county and municipal government to meet the needs of its citizens. Even so, the right to govern resides at the state level and state statutes delegate powers to municipalities. Within the parameters set by the legislature, municipalities determine their form of government. A municipality’s name (city, borough, township, town or village) is not necessarily an indication of its form of government. All municipalities have a policy-making body (council, committee, commission or board of trustees) and a mayor as formal executive (in village form the title is president). The relationship between mayor and policy-making body varies with the form of municipal government. Communities may have an elected executive to manage day-to-day affairs or an appointed administrator. Municipalities may elect officials at-large, by wards or a combination of the two in either partisan or nonpartisan elections.

There are eleven specific forms of municipal government in the statutes, seven based on historical forms of local government and four based on the Faulkner Act. The two most used forms of municipal government which are not Faulkner Act plans are the borough and the township forms of government.

- ★ The borough system is a weak mayor and council system with partisan elections; council performs most legislative and executive functions.
- ★ The township form consists of a three to five member township committee usually elected at-large in partisan elections. At its organizational meeting the committee selects one of its elected members to be mayor and preside at meetings.
- ★ City, town, village, commission and council-manager systems are used by less than 13 percent of municipalities.

The Optional Municipal Charter Law or Faulkner Act offers four basic plans (mayor-council, council-manager, small municipality and mayor-council-administrator) and two procedures by which the voters of a municipality can adopt one of the plans. It provides many choices for communities with a preference for a strong executive and professional management of municipal affairs. It also offers initiative, referendum and recall of elected officials to the citizens.

- ★ The mayor-council plan gives the mayor strong powers. Municipalities under this plan establish three to ten executive departments, headed by a director appointed by the mayor with the consent of the council.
- ★ The council-manager plan places complete responsibility for municipal affairs in the council. The council appoints a municipal manager who is the chief executive with broad authority.
- ★ The small municipality plan can be adopted by communities with a population of fewer than 12,000. All legislative powers are vested in the council with the mayor presiding over council sessions and having both voice and vote.
- ★ The mayor-council-administrator system is basically the borough form with an appointed professional administrator added.
