Legislation Improving Election Results Reporting Signed into Law

Last month, Governor Murphy signed into law a bill that brings consistency to the reporting of unofficial election results. The League testified in support of this legislation in committee, because of our support of increased transparency around elections reporting. Inconsistent and incomplete reporting of unofficial election results fuels misinformation and disinformation about elections. With this legislation, voters would be provided with timely, accurate and credible election information.

Specifically, this legislation would require that county clerks report unofficial election results the night of the election, and by 9 PM every day thereafter until all ballots have been counted. In addition, the bill requires that unofficial elections results separately report the number of early votes, election day votes, and mail-in votes cast. County clerks would also report the number of outstanding mail-in ballots yet to be counted. This information would also be reported to the Secretary of State, whose office would be responsible for publishing it online on the Division of Election's website. These changes will go into effect with the November 2023 general election.

How Democracy Works

Who are our county election officials?

Voting takes a village. There are many pieces to the puzzle working together to ensure that our elections run smoothly, that votes are counted, and that New Jersey residents can trust the election process. Our county election officials play an integral role in making democracy work.
