Zarcate and Korda: Launch of Legal Information Design Network
 From LIDN

Olivia Zarcate (@oliviaz) and Minnie Korda (@minniek) have launched a Legal Information Design Network, "the platform of Legal Information designers."

Here is a description of the site:

We are a bunch of Legal Information designers from all over the world!

This platform aims to give a common place to share our last news, what about our practice, promote the jobs, organize events and collaborations, publish resources.

The network is co-lead by Olivia Zarcate and Minnie Korda, two French legal information designers.

The network also has a Twitter account, @LIDNetwork and a LinkedIn group.

An interview with Olivia Zarcate about the network has been posted on StackShare.

Olivia Zarcate is scheduled to give a presentation about the network at the CLEC Legal Information conference, in April 2014 in London.

Law4OpenData UnHackaton, a report with our faces

Saturday: in Bologna for attending Spaghetti Open Data, Italic meeting of open data people and civic hackers. You know, one of those meetings where everyone seems to know everyone else. In particular, I attended the Law4OpenData Unhackaton, one of the 1.001 events unfailingly run by great Monica Palmirani (hey, she was on ABA journal this month) where I had the pleasure of meeting Monica and other passionate students, lawyers, civic hackers and civil servants, academics, hybrid people (myself).

I'm the social media sociable person at Peppercorn.

So I deal with social media stuff.

That is, I'm being sarcastic here and here and here and here. Or, you can call it customer acquisition and business development if it sounds better.

Legal Architecture.

I apply information architecture to the Law.

Organized What's on a lawyer's mind?, a card sorting: we asked people to help us create a taxonomy for Peppercorn.

The experiment was run from May 29 to June 15 2014, in 3 languages. More than 300 people responded.

Think visual! Can lawyers use film to tell their client's stories? Can lawyers use images to make their point of view clear? Yes. The use of images is burgeoning in the justice system and will continue to do so. Digital technologies and images have become more important in every phase of the system; multimodality is the standard in nowadays communication and of course also enters the courtrooms. Learn to think visual: theory and hands on!
