Mission Statement

Our mission is to break cycles of poverty and abuse and to create positive change in Cambodia through intervention and education for the most impoverished and underserved children and their families. By providing healthcare, education, job training and leadership development, the children in our care will enter Cambodian society with the foundation to become progressive leaders and spokespeople with the skills, confidence and integrity to help their own families and communities in a way no other generation has before.

Impact Statement

Cambodian Children's Fund (CCF) is a not-for-profit international organization registered in the state of California and operating entirely within the Kingdom of Cambodia. In a society as broken as Cambodia, the role of education and leadership building is critical. CCF is committed to each child for life, beginning with daycare services at age two, expanding to residential education programs at age six and continuing with transitional programs and workforce placements after a child turns 18. By creating opportunities for leadership and self-expression, CCF's teachings are naturally integrated with the students' knowledge of their society's opportunities, sensitivities and limitations.

Mission Statement

Mission: to break the cycle of child abuse by equipping parents and caregivers for success. Our mission resonates through our four educational and case management programs for families at risk for abuse. The Center works to empower its clients by teaching positive parenting methods and supporting parents in strengthening their families, emotionally, economically, physically, and socially.

Impact Statement

CAP Center is a key provider of critical prevention services for at-risk children and families. Last year we touched over 2,800 parents, teens and children through our four prevention programs. Outcome data reflects our program efficacy. The Center builds on family strengths and encourages the use of positive parenting methods. Referrals from Child Protective Services and others are accepted free of charge for our CAP's in-home service programs for pregnant and parenting teens. We lead the county in Shaken Baby Syndrome education and Families First divorce education. CAP Center is a key provider of critical prevention services for at-risk children and families. Our programs serve the most vulnerable members of our community: victims of violence, teenage parents, the isolated, and those without hope. Since our opening in 1992, over 27,000 in our community have participated in our programs. CAP receives no state or federal monies and relies totally on the community for its support.

General Info	Financials	Forms 990 & Docs	Programs & Help	People	News
Program: Healthy Families	Budget: $225,000 Category: Human Services Population Served: Female Children and Youth (infants - 19 years) Infants/Babies (under age 5) Youth/Adolescents only (14 - 19 years)		Program Description: Healthy Families is a strengths-based, proven home visitation program whose purpose is to prevent child abuse and neglect amongst teenaged parents living in certain high poverty zip codes* of Dallas. During home visits and monthly support groups, participants learn about their child's growth and development, participate in activities that promote strong parent-child relationships, and are connected with vital community resources. Teen parents are encouraged to complete educational goals and to obtain employment. Families are linked to primary medical providers, and developmental screenings are regularly conducted on the target children. The program accepts referrals of pregnant teens and teen parents of newborns from schools, hospitals, WVC clinics, and other agencies, as well as self referrals. Program participants are eligible to receive services until the target child's fifth birthday. The program utilizes nationally known curricula, including Parents as Teachers and Growing Great Kids, to help parents develop loving relationships with their babies and learn about the child's development. The Healthy Families program is an investment in child wellbeing among zero to five year olds. Initiating services to teen parents during the pregnancy, or just after the birth of the baby, and continuing them through this critical period of rapid brain growth and social-emotional development, is one of the best ways to ensure healthy parent-child relationships, optimal development, and readiness to enter the school system. It is also an immunization against child abuse and neglect. The CAP Center's Healthy Families program remains the only free, intensive in-home program that offers services prenatally to age 5 for teen parents and their children in Dallas County. Our flexibility is a hallmark of the program, enabling us to serve teen parents who might not otherwise have received services. *Current target zip codes for the Healthy Families program are 75203, 75204, 75208, 75210, 75211, 75212, 75215, 75216, 75217, 75220, 75223, 75224, 75226, 75227, 75231, 75232, 75233, 75241, 75246, and parts of 75214 and 75206.
			Program Long-Term Success: Since 2002, we have served over 154 families, including 230 teen parents, and 163 children. We collaborate with over 15 agencies in referring teen parents, ranging from DISD to Parkland to Children's to local WVC clinics. Two hallmarks of our program include following the child until the age of five and our flexibility in taking teen mothers who may not fit other programs. Our youngest

2008 Healthy Families Outcomes

1. Healthy Families served 74 families in 2008. This includes 115 parents and 76 children.
2. 90% (67 of 74 families) of active families have identified a primary medical provider.
3. 59 (80%) number of teenage mothers were employed or in school
4. There were 2 confirmed referrals to CPS
5. To reduce parental stress by 20% in active families as indicated in the PSI (Parenting Stress Index) over a two year period. (Two years needed for data comparison. . It is administered at 3 months and annually.)
6. To administer the Ages and Stages Questionnaire (ASQ) to 70% of target children over ages 4 months semi-annually over a two year period. (Two years needed for data comparison. Comparative data not yet available as the latter half of 2008 was first time for new scoring software. ASQ is administered at 4 months and semiannually. Early identification of children with developmental delays qualifies them to receive developmental services from Early Childhood Intervention programs.)

Thank You for Submitting Your GuideStar Information Form

An organization with EIN 32-1234888 is currently not in our database. Only 501(c) nonprofit organizations are in GuideStar's database. If the IRS has determined that your organization is a 501(c), or your organization is a religious entity please do the following:

Update Nonprofit Report:

Provide GuideStar with verification of your nonprofit status by forwarding a copy of your organization's Letter of Determination, which the IRS sent you after you filed an application for exemption. If your organization is a religious entity and does not have a Letter of Determination, then we are able to include your organization in the database if

- your organization has its own IRS-issued Employee Identification Number (EIN) and
- you provide us with a copy of your organization's listing in a religious directory (i.e., Kenedy Directory, Lutheran Directory, state letter for churches).

You can either fax your information to (757) 229-8912 or mail it to GuideStar

If we do not receive proof of your organization's 501(c) status within 30 days, we will delete your registration.

If you have questions about this process, please don't hesitate to e-mail us at customerservice@guidestar.org or call us at 800-784-9378, Monday-Friday, 8:00 a.m.-8:00 p.m. eastern time.

In addition, 5,000 instructors, students, and academic researchers received free access to GuideStar Premium, our highest level of service, through our Edu@GuideStar program.

We also provided nonprofit information to 25 partners, who then disseminated it to their audiences. In 2008, our partners included on-line giving portals, such as JustGive and Network for Good; social networking sites, such as Facebook and MySpace; all of the major donor-advised funds, including Fidelity, Schwab, and T. Rowe Price; and businesses such as Lexis-Nexis and Microsoft. Some of our partners presented our data on Web site pages "powered by GuideStar"; others incorporated GuideStar information into their own applications.

Almost everyone in our country—and many people far beyond its borders—is touched by U.S. nonprofits in some way. Almost everyone in our country—and many people far beyond its borders—is touched by U.S. nonprofits in some way. Our children attend nonprofit schools, our loved ones receive care in not-for-profit hospitals, and millions of us support charities with gifts of time and money. In recent years, the nonprofit sector has been the fastest-growing segment of the U.S. economy.

GuideStar was founded to make information about these vital organizations available to all. Before GuideStar, there was no central repository of nonprofit data available to the public. Donors had no independent source of information on the charities asking them for money. Nonprofits could not obtain the data they needed to benchmark their performance against their peers. Grantmakers went through a cumbersome process to verify nonprofit applicants' eligibility for grants, and journalists found it almost impossible to obtain hard facts about nonprofit programs and finances.

Today, GuideStar serves all of these audiences—and many more. Through our Web site and our partners, we are the leading source of information on U.S. nonprofits, serving millions of people each year. The breadth and depth of our database is unmatched. We have become an indispensable part of the way goods works are done.

We are proud of the role that we have played in promoting nonprofit transparency. Today, the public expects nonprofits to provide information about their missions, programs, and finances.

We are also proud of the role we have played in helping nonprofits reach out to new audiences. Regardless of mission, each of the 1.8 million organizations in our database is welcome to update its information, at no cost. We have created a level playing field.

Throughout our 14 years of service, our goal has been to improve the nonprofit sector and promote philanthropy about the nation's nonprofits widely available. We look forward to building on our achievements today and Revolutionizing philanthropy and nonprofit practice through information is a big, complex job that requires a substantial investment of resources. It is the heart of our mission, and it is appropriate that "Database management and technology" makes up the largest part of our budget.

"Data management and technology" encompasses a wide range of activities. Data editors verify the quality of the data we provide on 1.6 million nonprofits. Database administrators and programmers ensure that millions of fields of information end up in the right places. Nonprofit support representatives build relationships with the organizations in our database and help the nonprofits update their information in our database.
