

Compostable

Be part of the sustainability adventure

Compostable is a women-owned company whose mission is to close the loop in our food systems by transforming former 'waste' into future nutrients, by encouraging environmental justice, and by providing transparency around food systems in Los Angeles.

We get it, there's a lot of moving parts to manage as a business. Consider us a green glove service of waste diversion. We'll handle everything from logistics, liability and all the messy parts to make your building more environmentally friendly. We ensure your food scraps are recycled in decentralized, community-based composting systems throughout the city of Los Angeles creating city-wide carbon sinks!

THE ENVIRONMENTAL JUSTICE PLAN

COMPOSTING WITH AN EVEN BIGGER IMPACT

Intersectional Equity

Environmental Justice is the idea that everyone has the right to live in a healthy and safe environment, where no group bears a disproportionate share of environmental burdens.

It's well documented that BIPOC and low-income communities experience higher rates of environmental health hazards stemming from high levels of pollution and contamination from systemic racism, land exploitation, and NIMBYism.

In action, environmental justice looks like putting resources & funding into organizations led by communities of color, creating long-term capacity building, and uplifting BIPOC voices.

That's exactly what we're working to accomplish with our EJ Fund.
