Re: UPDATE - Amendment of Export Regulations for shipments to China, Russia, & Venezuela

Dear Valued Client,

On June 8th, an advisory was released announcing that the Bureau of Industry and Security (BIS) was amending the Export Administration Regulations (EAR) to expand license requirements on certain exports. The amendment requires a license for the exports, reexports, and transfer of items intended for military use destined for China, Russia, or Venezuela. It broadens the list of items for which the licensing requirements and review policy apply and expands the definition of “military end use.”
