PUBLIC COMMENT: Resident David Bayne expressed his appreciation to the Board for undertaking and supporting this project, although Roger Peacock deserves the recognition for starting the initiative many years ago.

Roger Peacock, former resident and property owner who lived in the Maple Island area, listened to ancestors' stories that this river has been dying for 150 years. He worked for MSU until 2009; a meeting 10 years ago in this hall kicked off the initial study which was supported scientifically.

Mr. Faulkner responded to a question about negative implications by stating that the hydrological study is designed to answer those types of concerns. He is confident that the study will assist in addressing any hurdles.
