When Working In Your Team

Consider 5 Questions

- How does this compare to our priorities?
- Who would do this work?
- Where would this work live (e.g., responsibility)?
- What should we stop doing to make room for this work?
- How will we assess whether it’s (a) implemented well and (b) working?

Examples of Family & Student Collaboration

Social Media/Twitter: PBIS Practice - Families asked to provide their perspective on how well a PBIS strategy worked at home.

HS: Youth leadership asked to problem solve appropriate ways for students to make suggestions for changes vs. engaging in unsafe protests.

HS: QR codes used to gather student feedback on current practices such as dress code.

MS & HS: Students asked to develop and deliver a student conference on mental wellness & social emotional skills.

Process

• District Level Support
• Principal Support
• PBIS Point of Contact/Coach Support
  – Identifying Students
• Planning Days 1-4
• Implementation
Expectations

• Point of Contact and/or Team Leader will attend all four sessions with students.
• Principal will schedule time to meet with participating students. Students will share their feedback and created product.
• Student team will present their ideas to the PBIS team after each session. *

• After the session
  – Help coordinate with Principal and PBIS team to ensure that the students get the opportunity to share back
  – Reach out to Sheri if there are any barriers to accomplishing outcomes
Identifying the students

The goal is to learn how students, who are representative of school demographics, feel about PBIS and the school’s climate. The first step in developing the focus groups is to identify potential students who can provide this information. This tool will help the school think through the students to invite to participate in the focus group.

In the table below, write in potential list of student names. The goal is to have a diverse group of students. The focus are students who are in 10th and 11th grade. Some things to make sure there diversity in the student composition of the focus group are: gender, race/ethnicity, students who have received an ODR/OSS, students who have academic concerns, and student with disabilities.

When we think of the federal racial categories, we need to realize that there are different ethnicities that comprise each of the federal racial categories. When identifying students, in addition to considering the federal racial category, we recommend a mix of different ethnicities that are representative of the student body.

<thead>
<tr>

<th>Examples of Different Ethnicities (This is not a comprehensive list)</th>
</tr>

<tbody>

</tr>
<tr>
<td>American Indian</td>
<td>Seminole tribe, Cherokee tribe, Miccosukee, ...</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>African American/Black</td>
<td>Haitian, West Indian, Black, Ethiopian, ...</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

An ideal “sampling frame” will include students:

a) Grade levels (10th and 11th),

b) Academic concerns (high-performers and low-performers),

c) Behavioral concerns (no ODR, 1-2 ODR, 1-2 OSS, multiple ODR and OSS) and

d) Federal Racial Category (across different ethnicities, see above)

e) Educational status (with/without an IEP).

*Note: Avoid using “poverty” as a common characteristic of your target group. Poverty is a diverse, multi-dimensional construct and is inadequate to describe a feature of a group.

As you complete this table, try to balance students’ grade level, academic standing, special education status. If upon completing this table, your team notices that your students have too much representation in one or more categories, you might want to consider changing students to ensure a balanced sample.

One Word
Follow-Up Principal

Good afternoon,

I want to thank all of you for being part of the Student Voice Project. Your students had a lot to share and were appreciative of the platform they were given. We had productive time together.

Your students should be arranging for a time to meet with you to discuss their plan. I know one school sent an email the afternoon of our session. I also encouraged the students to join the PBIS team in working together to accomplish their goals.

It was interesting to hear the conversations from different students - some themes kept resonating; student / teacher relationships, mental health, and lack of access to counselors.

Thank you for supporting positive behavior,
Sheri
Follow-Up District Administration

Good afternoon,

I wanted to update you all on the Student Voice Project that we are joining with Betsy and Stephanie from the Florida PBIS Project along with six of our high schools. We met with the students from SCHS, TKHS, and HRHS on Wednesday, Sept. 22nd and then GWHS, PNHS, and OCHS on Thursday, Sept. 23rd. The students were told to be honest in their thoughts and feelings about their school.

We had the students look at Panorama data (Spring 2021). They wrote down some key concerns they had from that data. Stephanie guided them through the PATH process. See the attached pictures. Students thought about their dream for their school and then created a goal and broke it down into actionable steps. Each school created an action plan that they will use to achieve their goal.

Some of the comments/discussions that were common for all six schools:

- Student / Teacher relationships - one school set their goal: "At the end of the year 3/7 teachers will ask them about their mental health"
- Lack of access to / interaction with School Counselors - one Junior had no idea who her Counselor was.
- Active engagement - many thought classes were boring
- Cultural representation in core classes
- Student mental health

The direction for the groups is to share their PATH with their principal. I will be checking with the adult contact to see how things are progressing and to ensure the action plan is being followed. We will meet again in January.

Thank you,
Sheri
Final Thought

S: “My phone was blowing up all day and I never looked at it to see what was going on. I must have missed something.”

A: “That means you were actively engaged all day, that is what should be happening in school. You shouldn’t be looking at your phone all day.”
