Challenge

The people behind this app hate wasting food. And they love their neighbourhood. Then it clicked, they could join the two up. Connect local people to share leftovers or ingredients. Bring people together over a shared love of food.

Solution

The app we built for iOS and Android helped users create a profile, then ask for items or post any food they had available to share – along with the amount and location. People used live chat and exchanged items offline.

Our help

The platform's up, running and building community interaction. It's been nominated for a Best Mobile App award.
