

Agamograph Art

Description

Design and build a 3D work of art that morphs from one image into another as you move past it!

Background

Agamographs are kinetic art pieces that appear to move or change as the image is viewed from different angles. They are named after Israeli artist Yaakov Agam (pictured) who makes giant scale versions of these throughout the world.

Materials

- Cardstock (print template)
- Markers
- Scissors
- Glue

Procedure

1. Draw an image in Picture Template 1. Draw a different image in Picture Template 2.
2. Cut out base template and picture templates along the bold lines.
3. Cut the picture templates into strips along the dashed lines.
4. Fold the base template along the light lines in an accordion shape.
5. Glue the picture template strips to the base template, matching the numbers and letters on the bottom of the strips to the corresponding letters and numbers on the base.

Questions

- Think about the two images you will create before you begin. Do you want your pictures to compliment or contrast one another?
- What do you want the viewer to think or feel as they move from one image to the other?
