Adacel successfully exhibits at World ATM Congress 2019

Orlando, Florida, March 28, 2019 – Adacel Systems, Inc. has once again exhibited at this year's World ATM Congress (WATM) 2019 in Madrid, Spain, March 12-14.

"We were happy to be back at the world's largest international Air Traffic Management (ATM) exhibition and conference to showcase our latest products and services," shares Brian Hennessey, Adacel's V.P. of Business Development. "Each year, this premier event hosts industry experts from around the world who view and discuss the latest industry trends and technology. We look forward to continuing to play an active role in these conversations and returning next year to showcase our latest product offerings," continues Hennessey.

At the Congress, Adacel showcased the latest advancements of its signature MaxSim Air Traffic Control (ATC) Training Simulator and Aurora – the company's flagship ATM automation system. In addition, Adacel launched an array of new ATM products to great market enthusiasm. The company's new cloud-based aeronautical billing system–Aerobooks– is being widely lauded for its ability to provide a highly cost-effective automated revenue management system for airports around the world.

The World ATM Congress attracts over 9,500 participants each year and 200+ speakers from more than 130 countries. Adacel has been showcasing its industry-leading products there since the show's inception, and is already planning for WATM 2020, which will take place in Madrid, Spain, on March 10-12.
