Investment Commentary

Global equity markets have been dominated by fears of a further resurgence in COVID infections. Q2 company earnings season was also a major feature providing markets with more insight into how well companies had survived the crisis. The S&P 500 was effectively flat for the month of July (-0.04%).

Despite the rise in COVID cases across the globe, death rates did not increase at anywhere near the same rate; this suggests that the virus is having a diminishing impact both on human safety and health care services.

The Q2 earnings season was more positive than expected with 84% of S&P500 companies exceeding their earnings guidance. Markets have been digesting how well companies weathered the crisis but more importantly assessing which companies will have a better chance of surviving a possible protracted negative trading environment if lockdowns persist.

In the short term, markets will be driven by how quickly countries are able to lift restrictions on travel and enable economies to return to full capacity. The third quarter returns are likely to be much more muted than the second. On balance, despite the risks that still remain, we retain our preference for adding to risk assets on any market setbacks.

Strategy Overview

In pursuit of attractive targeted returns, Fusion invests in a broad range of asset classes designed to maximise its ability to deliver returns whilst minimising the associated risk.

The Fusion Strategies are constructed around a managed portfolio of collective investment schemes, delivering a unique combination of diversification, flexibility and efficiency.

Fusion Income H3+ Strategy focuses on lower risk asset classes in order to achieve its return targets.

Investment exposure is weighted to lower risk asset classes such as fixed interest, arbitrage strategies and commercial property; the strategy includes some exposure to equities and other higher risk investments.

Targets a strategic currency exposure of 89% in the portfolio base currency.

Three and a half year rolling investment horizon and as a result focuses on lower risk asset classes whilst accepting lower returns.
