

Figure 1: Proposal for a national and regionally led structure for AMS in NZ. A model involving strong partnerships and engagement (healthcare provider and consumer) is essential. National organisations and professional bodies undertake AMS activities in line with both the National Centre for AMS (consistent messaging) and their individual functions, including direct engagement with healthcare providers and consumers across NZ (blue arrow). Regional and local AMS leadership is also necessary to facilitate activities across the breadth of healthcare system.

