Extended Health Benefit claims processing solution designed for Canadian Insurance Companies

Improve your customer experience by quickly processing Extended Health and Drug Benefits claims.

Manually processing claims from paper or digital images prevents claims processing teams from achieving or exceeding their targets.

Claims processing is a time-consuming activity that involves matching a claimant's information against internal systems, ensuring that extended health benefit claims are appropriately captured and coordination of benefits is correctly processed. Processing extended health benefits involves knowledge workers who are familiar with both the enrollment of new claimants and the activities around entering information about a claim being processed.
