- ◆ We believe that Jesus is the Christ, the God-man, fully God and fully man.
- ◆ We believe in the Cross of Christ and His blood atonement for the sins of the world, that whosoever believes in Him by faith shall be saved through God's grace.
- ◆ We believe in the bodily resurrection of our Lord Jesus Christ from the grave, the first fruits of those to come.
- ◆ We believe in the Second Coming of Jesus Christ.
- ◆ We believe in the presence and the power of the Holy Spirit.
- ◆ We believe in the Church, Christ's living body.

Harvest

Harvest time is something that you do not hear much about in city and suburban churches. Yet, here in the White Mountains, there are lots of garden plots, and there is a harvest going on right now. We should be grateful.

In most cultures across the world, harvest time brings special celebrations. As it was as our Pilgrim forefathers, sitting down for their first “Thanksgiving” meal, so it is with us who have planted, watered, weeded and now pick the fruit of our labor. We're celebrating.

I harvested my potatoes last week. I planted them on Good Friday, and they were ready by Labor Day. You can depend on the timing. Not that I got several bushels of spuds, but the wheelbarrow full was enough to rejoice over.

I have equal joy over the many squash harvested, and the abundant string beans, and the turnips, carrots, Swiss chard and bumper tomato crop. Some have less enthusiasm over vegetables, but how can one stand in Safeways' fruit and vegetable section...or in my garden...without being thankful for God's abundant harvest?

Our nation was far more religious when we were and agrarian population. When you farm, or garden, you depend upon God, who governs the sun, the soil, the rain and, yes, even the thistle (weed).

My bible says: “Shout joyfully to the LORD, and all the earth...Give thanks to Him; bless His name. For the LORD is good; His lovingkindness is everlasting, and His faithfulness to all generations”...and in all seasons (Psalms 100).
