Distributor's notes

Similar to the traditional Garnatxa Blanc white wine he makes, this is a single parcel, organically grown over calcareous soils and hand harvested. The grapes are destemmed and lightly crushed with their skin and spontaneously fermented in an amphora for 3 week. The wine is then pressed and stays in the amphora for another 8 months before bottling unfinned, unfiltered, and zero sulfur. Only 1206 bottles are produced.

Albert from Celler Tuets, the newest rising star out of the Penedès. All of his wines are made without additives of any kind and yet they are clean and precise. High toned with bright acidity and low alcohol for a Mediterranean climate, you could consider them all thirst wines. Characterized by calcareous soils between 500 and 600 meters of altitude, he's done an incredible job of capturing this expression "from the vine to the bottle," as he likes to say.
