Distributor's notes

A blend coming from Ribeiro made mainly of 45% Albariño, 45% Treixadura and 10% other varieties, from old vineyards bought over the years in the town of Gomariz. Partially consisting of 100-year-old vines in "As Viñas" & "O Forcadal" and the younger vines of "Os Canos." Soils are predominately clay, with some (rubio y azul) schist at an elevation of 200-220m. Grapes are hand harvested mid-September, direct pressing of whole bunch fermentation and aging in new oval foudre (2500L) by plots, no malolactic, for 8 months, which were mixed before bottling. Annual production is 5,000 bottles.

The combination of different plots that provide depth, elegance and concentration. The complexity, freshness and aromatic intensity is provided by the Albariño. The succulent, round, intense, elegant mouth, the Treixadura. The unprecedented texture in the mouth is from clay soils; the structure, of the Treixadura; and the Gomariz xistos highlight the mineral notes, fused together with a balanced acidity that lengthens the wine on the palate. Wine with finesse, elegance, intensity and complexity.

Vintage Report 2021: With cold winters and a cold spring, delayed fruit set and the wine cycle. Flowering in mid-June was followed by a cooler summer, with rain before the harvest and a sunny September with cold nights. A typical year from decades past.
