

LUKE LEWIS

BA (H) FILMMAKING

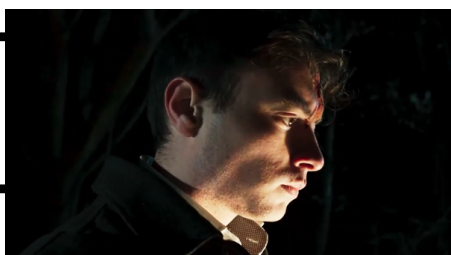

Hi I'm Luke Lewis, a writer/director whose just graduating from a filmmaking course at NTU. From a young age I have been captivated by film, falling in love with the medium I knew this area was where I wanted to spend my life. To this end I started acting in school plays and taking classes. Later I moved into making short films which lead me to this course where I continued my love affair with film learning new disciplines and meeting new people. I worked on a horror and visual essays where I analysed film. My latest film, a comedy titled No Free Lunch was the culmination of this work. Collaborating on these films with others was a joy that allowed me to grow as a person. When I worked on the set of Disney's recent Dumbo as an extra, I saw the importance of these interpersonal relationships to a crew. It is my ambition to move into the film industry and keep working and learning until one day I can inspire someone in the way I was inspired in my youth.
