

JOANNA SMITH

BA (H) TEXTILE DESIGN

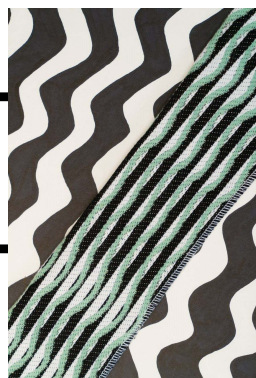

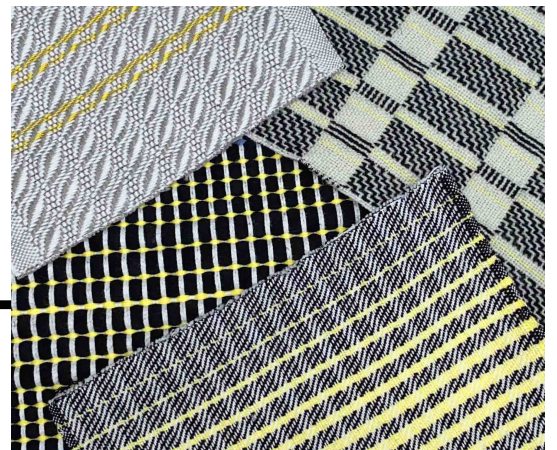

Distorted Reality is a high-end woven interiors collection, taking inspiration from how we live in today's society, not everything is always as it seems due to editing and enhancing the truth, which can be seen through social media and the news in particular. Taking a twist on this Distorted Reality focuses on optical illusions, layering and woven distortion techniques to show different perspectives with the aim of playing tricks on the eye. This collection consists of hand/digital woven textiles with a combination of large-scale bold designs and more subtle designs to cover a variety of techniques and create a cohesive collection. With the skills I have gained I would like to continue designing within the interiors industry, developing my knowledge, and incorporating good sustainability practice.
