

MATTHEW ROSE

BA (H) GRAPHIC DESIGN

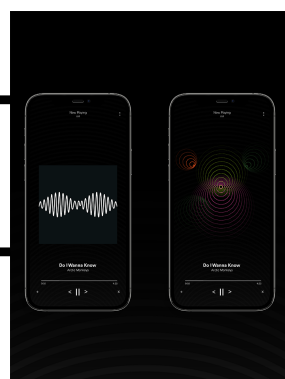

I'm Matthew Rose, a graphic design graduate from NTU. I pride myself on creating bold ideas and revolving my projects around my other interests such as music. My favourite project is my interpretation of a brief called creative explorers. The task was to create a piece celebrating a famous explorer. I took a musical twist and looked at the Beatles' Sgt Pepper, as it is the first-ever concept album. I linked the project to the current pandemic by creating a stay-at-home concert experience where everyone would sit down and listen to the album simultaneously. The concert was brought to life through a piece of packaging that could be converted into a stage to fit around a record player. During my time at NTU, I have been part of the Platform magazine design team. I have collaborated with illustrators to create layouts for the print editions. The work was nominated for numerous Student Publication Awards. In the future, I hope to be working on projects which combine my love for music.
