BA (H) FASHION DESIGN

I've always been keen on making my projects with a personal touch by using my own photographs. Therefore, my concept is derived from the architectural structure of City Palace, located in Jaipur, India, which reflects a mix of European and Mughal architectural style in fusion with the Victorian women who wore suits as a symbol of power and equality. I am using the architecture of the palace with the trims and details of the suits to create a much more contemporary unisex collection. The idea is to blend Indian architectural heritage and British tailoring into something more contemporary.
