Mimic couldn't believe that he had found a Wellness Orb, in fact he was so happy he even gave it a little hug.

Tucking the Orb under his arm, Mimic hopped up and began heading towards the exit before stopping. In his excitement he had forgotten about poor Gemini who was still lost in this Jurassic cave.

As he turned he came nose to nose with the T-Rex that had only just before been chasing Gemini.

"What are these little strange creatures?" The T-Rex must have thought, "and why is this one trying to steal my eggs?!" It also must have thought, as it looked down at the Wellness Orb snuggled under Mimic's arm.

Whatever it was thinking, it looked angry.

This time, it was Mimic's turn to run...

Mimic had rather little legs meaning he wasn't much of a runner and the T-Rex was catching up fast, reaching out to grab the little imp.

But the T-Rex had rather little arms, so wasn't much of a reacher, which was probably a good thing in this case. Everyone has their strengths and their weaknesses, and recognising both can be a good thing to manage our own and others expectations.

For Mimic the expectation here was that he didn't get caught by the big, scary dinosaur that was after him.

So he pumped his little legs faster than he ever had before. Until...

WHUMP!!!

He ran straight into Gemini and his new dinosaur crew.

Gemini wasn't running anymore. He stood up straight, tall and brave.

He stared up at the T-Rex who stared back down at him, uncertain of what was happening. Just then, the mean little mouth that sat on Gemini's chest opened wide and began shouting louder and louder at the T-Rex.

"NO ONE is mean to the Beasties. NO ONE scares the Beasties. NO ONE chases the Beasties."

Boy oh boy did that T-Rex get an earful. Not used to being spoken to in such a way, the dinosaur quickly went from looking like a big scary monster to a quivering and sobbing lump of lizard, that slumped on the ground.

It turned out that the T-Rex only acted like an angry, scary monster because of her little arms. They made her feel inferior to other dinosaurs. So she made up for it in other ways. Such as being angry and scary.

Mimic and Gemini gave the T-Rex a big hug and told her that her two legs were the biggest and strongest they'd seen, her many teeth were the sharpest and her roar shook the ground.

Feeling much better and realising the Wellness Orb wasn't in fact one of her eggs the T-Rex trotted off back to her nest.

But how were our Beasties to get back to the surface? Gemini, Mimic and the dinosaurs looked around scratching their heads, and then spotted the answer.

Gemini waved fondly to his dinosaur friends as a massive diplodocus lifted the pair to the cave's exit, with his head.

From this high up they could see how small the dinosaur cave was, and how many dinosaurs were cooped up together inside.

After so long on the boat, cooped up with the other Beasties, Gemini understood how it must be for the dinosaurs and felt for them.

He knew he had to find a way to get them out, but how? They were so big and there were so many of them.

Maybe Oscar could help, he was after all a genius.

Once back at the Ship, Gemini told Oscar what he had found and that he wanted to help.

It just so happened that Oscar had been working on a device called the Portal Pooter that created portals to chosen destinations.

Using the Portal Pooter to get the Dinosaurs out of the cave would be the perfect test of his new device. But before they set off back to the cave he needed to check that it worked.

What Oscar didn't realise was a mysterious ship had crept up behind him and his crew. The ship had been following them for some time and finally caught up.

As Oscar switched on his Portal Pooter, which chugged, coughed and sprung to life, a huge light shot up into the sky and a portal ripped open through the air.

A shockwave that blasted outwards from the portal threw Oscar, Abi and the Beasties to the floor and caused the mysterious ship to lunge forward, knocking Oscar's ship into the portal.

Before anyone knew what was going on the portal slammed shut.

As they all rubbed their eyes and looked around it became quite clear that they no longer were where they once were. And they were no longer together.
