

Covering the risks of terrorism and political violence

Coverage options for risks of terrorism and political violence

In our globalised world, companies are increasingly facing challenges from terrorism and political violence. Insurance cover is available from state pools as well as private sector policies – some limited to the home country, some transnational, with diverse coverages and different jurisdictions. Our services aim to close the gaps in coverage and ensure transparent, globally consistent insurance cover.

Allianz Global Corporate & Specialty (AGCS)

offers various coverage options to insure against terrorism and political violence, which can be combined as required. The cover can be added where state pool solutions or traditional types of business insurance reach their limits, e.g. in the area of offshore wind, infrastructure projects and incidents with cross-border effects.

We also create International Insurance Programmes (IIP) to cover the risks of terrorism and political violence, with the aim of meeting current regulatory requirements.
