Yarram Circular Economy event

Story & photos by Andrew Lester & Linda Ballis

Yarram Community Energy hosted the Circular Economy event on 23rd May 2021.

It started with tours of the Radial Timber mill. As the first tour at 10.00am was so well attended the attendees were split into 2 groups. One group heard from Chris McEvoy, director of the Radial Timber Mill about how the radial timber mill concept developed and how it improves the yields of the timber being used and reduces wastage in the milling process. He also talked about the sustainable timber plantations they have available to make sure the mill is viable well into the future.

This group then heard from Brendan Lindstrom from Regenerative Resources, supported by Linda Ballis from GridEdge about the proposed Yarram Renewable Energy Park. Stage 1 of the park's development involves a Pyrolysis unit backed with SoNick Battery storage to process the timber waste at the mill and provide energy to the mill as well as bio products that can create new business opportunities for Yarram new businesses. A research facility will also be part of this stage where universities and other education or research facilities can utilize the pyrolysis machine for their own research and education.

Another proposal for the park or stage 2 is a solar energy installation, again backed by SoNick Battery storage to provide more energy to the mill and also via a "community benefit sharing model" ongoing income to the Yarram Community Energy group to provide renewable energy projects in Yarram.

Further stages will involve a larger pyrolysis unit to process more of the timber waste from the mill and from onsite at the timber plantations to provide more energy for the mill and make the mill a closed loop business. Hot houses or other similar businesses can be co-located on site to utilize the energy supplied or the heating that can be provided from the bio-crude oil. Eventually a neighborhood battery can be installed to provide power for the wider Yarram district.

Tony Britton, the Radial timber mill manager then took this group on a tour through the mill and explained the mills operations including the shed where the proposed community solar installation will be mounted. For many Yarram residents this was a great opportunity to see what has happened in the mill over the last 10 years.

These 2 groups then swapped over and then another group at 11am repeated the process. The days events then continued at the Regent theatre in the main street of Yarram with a number of displays where people could talk to various stall holders about a variety of aspects of transitioning to a circular economy for Yarram and surrounding areas. These stalls included information for residents,

These stalls included Radial timber mill and Heartwood plantations, Glawac and Warrigunya Gunaikurnai Land and Waters Aboriginal Corporation, Star of the South, Yarram Yarram Landcare Network, Farmers for Climate Action, Wellington Shire, Gippsland Climate Change Network, Gippsland Tafe, Solar Victoria, Department of Environment, Land, Water and Planning, Latrobe Valley Authority and Gippsland Smart Specialisation, Radial Timber Renewable Energy Park, GridEdge Battery Solutions Outside, Ian Southall from GCCN had his renewable energy trailer which is used to showcase various renewable energy technologies and how they work. Ian takes this trailer to various events and schools where he has a program that can be delivered to various grade levels.

From 1pm there were a number of talks and this section of the afternoon was chaired by Matt Langdon of Yarram Traders Association. These started with a welcome from the Wellington Shire mayor, Garry Stephens followed by a presentation from Scott Elliot from Yarram Yarram Landcare about their blue carbon project at Corner inlet and how this can fit into a circular economy. Andrew Lester from Yarram Community Energy Group then gave a short talk about the newly formed group and what we hope to achieve in Yarram including getting members from Yarram to join the project and move it forward with their own areas of expertise.

Matt Charles-Jones, founding member of Totally Renewable Yackandandah then gave a talk about how their renewable energy group started and how they have moved forward towards an aim of being 100% renewable by 2022. This involved educating people about energy efficiency measures they can take in their own homes to reduce energy consumption and putting solar PV installations and/or batteries on homes and businesses. The group has also been involved in making several local buildings, like the fire station energy independent in case of an emergency. They have recently installed a community battery, called Yack-01 as a further step towards the 100% renewable goal for energy security.

A panel discussion was next with Matt Charles-Jones, Chris McEvoy, Scott Elliot and Andrew Lester where members of the audience asked questions of the various presenters.

This turned out to be a very successful day with many residents of Yarram and surrounding areas showing interest in becoming involved in the Yarram community energy group. We are hoping to convene in a couple of weeks with the many people that have expressed interest in becoming part of the Yarram Community Energy Group journey to introduce Renewable energy to Yarram. Currently we are looking at 20th June. If you are interested in joining us please send us your email address to team@yarramcommunityenergy.com so we can keep you informed or contact Andrew on 0467 544 248.

Wellington Shire Council librarians hit major milestones

Two Wellington Shire Council librarians were celebrated this month for achieving major service milestones. Margaret Payne, who works at both Yarram and Sale libraries, was recognised for 45 years of service, while Michelle Selzer was acknowledged for 35 years of service, almost 30 of those years spent as Yarram's Library Officer in Charge.

"It's an amazing job," Margaret says. "You meet wonderful people and you help people out. I love everything about it."

"All of my friends have had multiple jobs and they say 'How can you stay in the same job for so many years?'," Michelle says. "But things have changed so much in my 35 years. We didn't even have computers back when I started. We're all learning new things, new skills and moving forward."

Wellington Shire Council's start-of-the-art libraries at Yarram Hub (which opened in 2014) and Port of Sale (2018), are both bright community spaces that serve as far more than just a place to borrow a book.

But when Margaret Kay, as she was then known, reported to Yarram Library on Commercial Road for her first day of work on Monday morning, 23 February 1976, she entered a drafty and uninviting 1950s brick building.

"The old Yarram Library was really bad," says Margaret. "It was two-storey with open windows – and it was very, very cold."

She recalls that in winter, library staff would wear fingerless woolen gloves to do cataloguing duties. "And if someone dropped a catalogue card drawer – and people did – it would take us hours to put them back in."

Margaret had worked her way up to the role of Branch Officer in Charge when the library hired Michelle Rogers, now Michelle Selzer, to start, straight from school, in 1986.

"I did work experience at the library with Margaret when I was in Year 10," Michelle says. "And I was lucky enough when I finished Year 12 to then get the job there."

Michelle recalls that the children's area was sited at the top of the former building's steep stairs, so the quiet of the library would occasionally be disturbed by the clatter of a toddler tumbling down the steps.

More than a decade later, Marg had children herself and she decided to give up her full-time role at the library and become a casual employee, which she has continued to do since.

"While having children prompted me to go part-time, I think sometimes you get to an age where it's good to have new blood come in. And that was Michelle."

This has meant that since the early 1990s, Margaret has worked for Michelle, the Library Officer in Charge.

Technology and the internet have transformed the way words are consumed and the way libraries operate, so Michelle and Margaret now work at dynamic spaces that connect locals to the world via vast databases and online connections to other libraries.

Their roles are now often about helping people to use online tools, audio books and digital resources.

"I even get the occasional person who says 'Do people read books?'," Margaret says. "It really happens."

But there is one group of library visitors who still crave words on paper.

"Little kids still love books," says Michelle, who helps run the Rock, Rhythm & Rhyme program for kids aged three and under.

Michelle keeps a treasure trove of children's books for her programming and shares them by sitting on the floor and interacting with little people.

It is a program that fosters a love of books, reading and libraries, and might even inspire a few pint-sized Wellington Shire locals to develop a passion to become a librarian.

As a result of grant funding received, Gippsland Disability Advocacy are establishing Peer Led Support groups for people with disability across a number of towns in Gippsland, one of which is Yarram.

We hope to have enough interest to begin monthly meetings at the Yarram Neighbourhood House in June sometime.

This is an exciting project which will provide an opportunity for people with disabilities to come together to: make new friends and help each other, build confidence to reach your goals, get connected to your local community and have your voice heard so your community can learn how to better support you.

To communicate your interest in joining our group and to have any questions answered, please contact Rebekah on 0447 033 967 or email to rebekahclarke@gdai.org.au

Remember, if you lose a sock in the dryer, it comes back as a Tupperware lid that doesn't fit any of your containers.

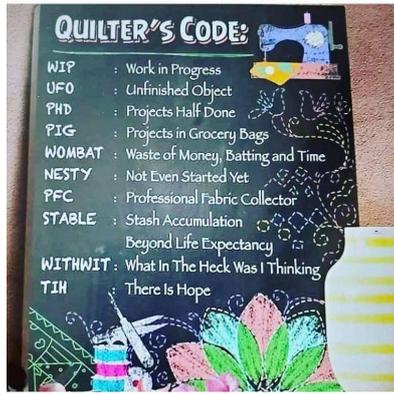

I HATE IT WHEN YOU CAN'T FIGURE OUT HOW TO OPERATE THE IPAD AND THE RESIDENT TECH EXPERT IS ASLEEP. BECAUSE HE'S 5. AND IT'S PAST HIS BEDTIME.

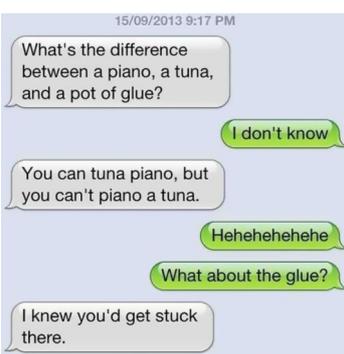

A farmer was milking his cow. He was just starting to get a good rhythm going when a bug flew into the barn and started circling his head. Suddenly, the bug flew into the cow's ear. The farmer didn't think much about it, until the bug squirted out into his bucket. It went in one ear and out the udder.

THINKING OF SLEEPING ON MY HUSBAND'S SIDE OF THE BED TONIGHT. APPARENTLY FROM THAT SIDE, YOU DON'T HEAR THE KIDS WAKE UP AT NIGHT.

Because I am an awesome parent, I'm currently helping my kids search for their chocolate that I ate last night.

PRO TIP: NAPPING
If you want to nap while the kids are home, just say "Wake me up in 30 minutes so we can clean the house." They will then do literally anything to avoid waking you.

Council conducts research to get the buzz on mozzies

The high-pitched whine of mozzies and the itchy bites they leave behind are a nuisance, but mosquitoes can also carry serious diseases, so Wellington Shire Council is stepping up efforts to control their numbers and learn more about the bloodsuckers.

Mosquitoes can transmit Ross River Virus and the rare Barmah Forest Virus. Both viruses are found in the Gippsland region and cause joint pain and stiffness, headaches, fever, rashes and fatigue.

To combat the spread of mosquitoes when warmer weather comes, Council has been working with the Victorian Government's Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS) to increase monitoring and trapping.

Monitoring and trapping to determine species and provide notification of diseases found was conducted from November to April.

"Officers from Council's Mosquito Control Program caught an impressive 350,000 mozzies in six months, at sites ranging from Seaspray to Loch Sport to Longford," Wellington Shire Council Mayor Garry Stephens said.

"And Council has conducted research through additional trapping. This provides more data about how much breeding is going on along Ninety Mile Beach," Cr Stephens said.

"In addition, some 78 hectares of breeding sites were treated using a natural, larvae-killing bacteria called Bti."

Reducing mosquito levels on private land is also important. Council can be asked to check potential breeding sites on private property and householders are asked to regularly remove water from places where larvae lurk. This includes bird baths, old tyres, pot plant bases, buckets and pet bowls.

Rainwater tank openings should be covered with mesh, and swimming pools chlorinated. Fishponds should be stocked with Australian native fish because they eat mozzies.
