

Equal Rights Policy (February 17, 2021)

Equal and equitable human rights for all are at the heart of Scordatura's ethos. This includes the content we produce, the people and projects we profile, and the future of the performing arts that we advocate.

It also extends to the contributions of guests to this blog - either as authors, or in the comments. We will not publish any work or commentary that we consider to be counter to those aims.

The vast majority of the content on this website is produced for free, as a hobby. But where remuneration is offered, it will be fair, equitable and will not discriminate by gender, sexual orientation, age, disability or race.

If you are concerned about any of the content you see on this website, or believe that there's more we can be doing, please write to us at info@scordatura.io
