Neighborhood Science After School 2015

Thank you for your interest in hosting a Philadelphia Science Festival Neighborhood Science After School event at your library. Our goal is to make your participation, and that of those you serve, a rewarding experience! Once again, the programs will be more free-flowing and will feature 4-6 science educators providing hands-on activities at your library. The activities will happen concurrently in your space, allowing children and families to come and go as they choose.

Please help us achieve this goal by taking five minutes to complete this short survey. This will ensure that we make the most appropriate match for your group's interests. Locations will be chosen soon, so please get your information in as soon as possible!

NOTE Neighborhood Science After School programming will be held from 3:30pm - 5:30pm Monday, April 27 - Thursday, April 30. To be eligible to participate you must be open to the general public during these hours on the day your location is selected for the event.

Have questions? Please contact Rachel Fryd (215-686-5372/ frydr@freelibrary.org) or Ellen Trappey (215-448-1346/ etrappey@fi.edu).
