

Inclusion Support

In partnership with the WA Inclusion Agency, Wanslea offers resources and funding to ensure that early childhood education and care services are equipped to provide quality care to all children. We work with services to increase their capacity and further develop educators' skills in supporting children with additional needs. Spring into Learning

Spring into Learning is a free, play based early education program that helps children transition successfully into school.

From arts and crafts to songs and stories, our educators create a culturally safe environment where children are encouraged to explore their interests and develop at their own pace. By developing their skills in social interactions, language, emotional development, physical skills, literacy and fine motor skills, your child will be equipped to succeed and thrive in school.

By attending Spring into Learning, families can also access a range of services to support children's health, wellbeing and development that ease their transition to school.

1. Try it out

Attend a session and see if you and your child enjoy the Spring into Learning program

2. Enrol your child

If you enjoy your experience, we'll ask you to complete a free enrolment so we can cater for you in our resources and morning tea

3. Attend regularly

Enjoy catching up with other parents and children for play, learning and conversation

Connected Beginnings

The Connected Beginnings initiative aims to reduce the gap in school readiness and education outcomes between Aboriginal and non-Aboriginal children by providing easier access to early childhood, maternal, child health and family support services.

The initiative also makes it possible for better communication and information sharing between service providers, increasing the quality of care and ensuring that families only need to tell their story once. By implementing change together, we can focus on cultural safety and recognition ensuring the culture of Aboriginal children and their families is valued, celebrated and reflected in their community. Through these partnerships and initiatives, we aim to ensure that Kalgoorlie's Aboriginal families have access to the services and support they need to prepare their children for school.

Enquire to find out how you can access these initiatives call 08 9245 2441 or email kalgoorlie@wanslea.org.au
