Bdp

Founded in Preston, UK in 1961, BDP is a major international practice of architects, designers, engineers and urbanists. They create outstanding places for people. Working in interdisciplinary teams they produce integrated, holistic and sustainable solutions. Their cumulative depth of experience gives them leading edge expertise across a wide spectrum of sectors including heritage, health, education, workplace, retail, urbanism, housing, transport and leisure.

BDP now has studios across the world. These combine local knowledge with the vision, values and infrastructure of a major award winning practice.

BDP employ 950 people across 6 locations in the UK and international offices in Ireland, Netherlands, UAE, China, Canada and India. Their affiliation with Nippon Koei, the largest engineering consultancy in Japan, affords them an international network of locations and a broad service offering to assist clients in their project needs.

Their aim is 'to be the world's leading building design practice, providing excellence in design and service through partnership'. BDP pioneered multi-disciplinary team and have been assembling and managing integrated teams for complex UK and overseas projects for over 50 years. They take single point responsibility for the design; integrated design optimises resources and solutions, minimises risk in the total process of a project, and releases the client from the task of co-ordinating disparate disciplines.

Their international project experience has seen them work in many countries, often collaborating with local practices and local labour in areas where they do not have an established presence. This includes: Most of Europe, Australia, Canada, China, Egypt, Iceland, India, Ireland, Kuwait, Japan, Lebanon, Libya, Morocco, Nigeria, Qatar, Russia, Singapore, Taiwan, Tanzania, Thailand, Tunisia, Turkey, UAE, Ukraine and Zimbabwe.
