Sola by Justus Kolberg

Sola has long been known for exemplifying a truly classic, minimalistic style, enhancing conference spaces and executive offices alike. As a result of technological and manufacturing advancements, this designer favorite was re-engineered entirely in 2021 with more comfort in mind, enhancing the seating experience of the Sola Chair through evolved features in the seat and back. In 2022, Davis Furniture is releasing a wood veneer back option to enhance the aesthetic of the latest edition.

Like its predecessor, these new designs possess a distinctive, sculptural form marked by dramatic angles and uninterrupted lines. However, these updated designs now include an increased focus on all-day comfort and support. Sola's designer, Justus Kolberg, and the Davis Furniture team reworked the design to create a conference and executive chair that's more user-focused while also maintaining the impressive and unparalleled aesthetic of the iconic Sola silhouette.

This latest edition includes a wood veneer insert inlaid within the back upholstery of the executive chair. Available in oak or walnut veneer for both the high back and mid back versions, this recent addition enhances the overall beauty of Sola while providing designers with another elegant yet durable solution for their executive seating needs. Providing more durability than its former design, Sola's new wood back becomes uniquely protected from hard surfaces by inseting its veneer detail.

Sola also features an updated version of the original seating mechanism as well as an aluminum seat pan which underscores the upholstered seat while adding a sleek detail and enhanced visual interest to the underside of the chair. Meanwhile, a semi-flexible plastic back covered in molded foam, creates the perfect lumbar support and lasting comfort throughout the workday.

Sola's aluminum five-star caster base, chair arms and underside of the upholstered seat are available in polished aluminum as well as in 32 standard powder coat colors. Staying true to its legacy, the new Sola chair preserves the sleek aesthetic of the original design while elevating it even further for prestigious office spaces, conference rooms and executive offices.
