

AI-powered enterprise search and knowledge discovery

The way we work has completely transformed – digital complexity, information overload, and SaaS sprawl have become constant realities of the modern workplace. Workers need reliable information to do their jobs effectively and efficiently, but they're often spending too much time searching for it. The result? Workers spend 20% of each day looking for information – and up to 6.5 hours per week on duplicated work. Productivity is lost, employees are unhappy, and organizations fall behind.

That's why we created Glean.

Glean empowers you to discover the information you need. Experience powerful, AI-powered search and enterprise-ready generative AI chat assistance that encompasses the entire breadth of your company, in a safe and secure manner requiring minimal overhead to integrate.

Best-in-class search and chat relevance

- Deeply personalized and relevant search results and chat assistance
- Unified, org-wide solution across all apps
- Comprehends file context, company language, enterprise and employee activity

Turnkey setup and implementation

- Ready to go within hours, out-of-the-box
- Highly customizable to fit enterprise needs
- Semantic models learn from queries – no manual training required

Airtight security and permissions

- Single tenant architecture and least privilege principles ensure information security
- Permissioning rules automatically followed according to each file's pre-existing settings

The best part?

There's nothing complex about getting started. Anyone who's searched for something online will feel instantly at home with Glean. With over 100 easy-to-use connectors, Glean also works where you do. Stay connected and access your company's collective knowledge in one place, while continuing to work the way you like.

About the company

Glean was founded by a world-class team of former Google search engineers and industry veterans who wondered just like you - why don't we have an easier way of finding what we need at work?
