Prework
Community Conversations

The possibilities for Racial Equity and Liberation expand when we are in community with one another. Communities are interdependent eco-systems working together for the good of the whole. And although each person or group’s contribution may be specific and unique, we acknowledge our mutual reliance.

What does it mean to be in authentic and accountable relationship with one another?

What is our commitment to relationship building?
To developing common language and shared analysis?
To centering multiple histories?

To what work will each of us commit, in order to ensure the liberation of all people?

"In nature everything works in collaboration. There are hummingbirds and flowers that are in such deep coordination they need each other for survival. How vibrant and alive and successful could our movement be if we moved with such coordination and collaboration."
~Karissa Lewis
This week’s practice: COMMUNITY CONVERSATIONS

In preparation for the closing session, spend 30 minutes reflecting on your experience.

- What is clearer now?
- What are the new learnings?
- How have you been affirmed?
- What conversations do wish to explore?

The facilitators, Monica Dennis and Rachael Ibrahim, will share stories about their process as well as the content offered during the series.