IMPACT REPORT 2023

We can't believe that The Cameron Boyce Foundation (TCBF) is four years old and we are excited to share what we have been up to.

TCBF's focus has been on raising awareness about epilepsy, its impact, reducing stigma for those living with epilepsy and about making it a vital part of the health care narrative. The numbers are still staggering... 1 in 26 people will develop epilepsy in their lifetime, 3.4 million Americans live with epilepsy, and 1 in 1,000 of those may die of Sudden Unexpected Death in Epilepsy (SUDEP). We continue to meet people impacted by epilepsy who reach out for information, guidance and for a safe place to share their experiences with this disease. This validates our work and the need to double down on our efforts to instill hope and support. We do this through imparting knowledge, providing tools, spreading the word about epilepsy awareness, and by creating spaces for discussion and support.

We continue to partner with and fund CURE Epilepsy and Partnership Against Mortality in Epilepsy (PAME) to identify synergies around awareness, research, and to secure more federal research dollars. In addition, we continue to grow our educational toolkit through the Now What Campaign so that individuals and their families who are newly diagnosed can take control of their medical care and general well-being from day one. Our support is evident in an online support group that has grown to 3,000 members with a recent launch of a group for young adults living with epilepsy. We couldn't do this without our Young Adult Community Advisory Board that helps inform all programs on behalf of the foundation.

This past year, I think most non-profits were impacted by the state of the economy and inflation, and TCBF was not immune. This gives us greater reason to strive for our goals and celebrate our collective successes.

This upcoming May 28th, 2024, Cameron would have been 25 years old. We will continue to bring his message to the masses and pray that another family does not have to go through the tragedy that we endured. Thank you, thank you, thank you to our sponsors, our sensational team, our family and friends, our TCBF village and our amazing partners. As always, you mean the world to us and we hope to reach new heights over the next year.

Happy Holidays to all!

Love,
Libby & Victor Boyce
