

The Valuation Office: A History & Celebration: 1910 – 2021

Back in 2010 the Valuation Office (VO) celebrated its centenary. As part of this, a new history of the VO was prepared and shared through the VOA's Intranet with staff. The original idea had been to produce this as a hard copy book with numerous photographs saved from the basement at New Court (the VOA's former headquarters) when the old building closed, and/or assembled from the offices around the country. For various reasons, the hard copy was not developed at the time.

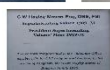

Graham Stalker has built on Patrick Bond and Paul Sanderson's original text, greatly enlarging the book, and adding many more photographs to produce a volume worthy of the Valuation Office Agency, both for its original hundred years and the further years that have now passed.

The work justifies its professional presentation. The book is in colour and hardback with a dust jacket.

Producing such a quality publication does not come cheaply, and at 408 pages it is not a slim, pocket-sized volume. It is A4 sized, and much larger than Parry's Valuation Tables!

Publication has been financed by the authors and it is offered at cost.

Someone has been in the General Clerk's and the highest in the Third Clerk's very difficult to find.

There are a number of other Clerk's who are engaged on work of different kinds.

There are a number of other Clerk's who are engaged on work of different kinds.

There are a number of other Clerk's who are engaged on work of different kinds.

There are a number of other Clerk's who are engaged on work of different kinds.

There are a number of other Clerk's who are engaged on work of different kinds.

There are a number of other Clerk's who are engaged on work of different kinds.

There are a number of other Clerk's who are engaged on work of different kinds.

There are a number of other Clerk's who are engaged on work of different kinds.

Contents
	Foreword	5
	Authors' Reflections	7
1:	The New Domesday Book	11
2:	Finance Act (1909 – 1910) 1910	16
3:	The Great War	35
4:	The Inter-War Years	45
5:	War Damage	66
6:	Post-War: Development Rights and the Great Compulsory Purchase Era	76
7:	The Arrival of Rating	88
8:	Into the 1970s	106
9:	The 1980s – An Era of Reviews	118
10:	Scotland	131
11:	1991 - Agency Status	151
12:	Council Tax	172
13:	Into the 21 st Century - A World Class Objective	176
14:	Rent Officers and the Rent Service	191
15:	The Centenary Agency in 2010	194
16:	Beyond 100 - The Decade that Followed	199
Appendices
1:	Chief Valuers and Chief Executives	227
2:	The Superintending Valuers' Mess	236
3:	Interview with Edward J Smith	246
4:	Recollections of the 1956 Rating Revaluation	253
5:	Happiness is a Meeting with the District Valuer	257
6:	Mineral Valuers, Building & Quantity Surveyors, P&M Valuers	261
7:	Capital Taxation and the VOA	269
8:	Work for Other Public Bodies - the OPR Function	273
9:	The Treasury Valuer / Crown Property Unit	287
10:	Training in the VOA	290
11:	Trade Unions in the VOA	299
12:	Computers and the Digital VOA	305
13:	Social Side of the VOA	318
14:	Sport and the VOA	328
15:	International Links with the VOA	359
16:	Chief Valuer Sir (John) Kenneth Atkinson – A Memorial Address	365
17:	VO Senior Management Appointments 1909 to 1991 (SVs and above)	368
18:	Extracts from the National Archives	375
19:	VOA Timeline	382
20:	Index to Photographs	399
	Acknowledgements	408

You are invited to reserve your copy - or copies - now: “What a great present for a loved one or close friend” the authors say!

The order form is below. Payment is not required until the order has been received.

Postage and packaging is included in the price (within the UK only).

In addition to this publication on the IPTI website, we are relying on ‘word of mouth’ to spread news of this comprehensive and welcome history, so please tell your friends and colleagues to purchase a copy.

The book contains a total of 16 Chapters and 20 Appendices covering everything from how the Valuation Department started, through both sets of war years, the great compulsory purchase era, the revival of rating in the 1990s, the Scottish Valuation Office, developments in IT, the various Sports Clubs, the Art & Photographic Awards, Trade Unions and recollections of many VOA people about their work.

It is a veritable “cornucopia” of all things VOA, past and present!

Cost: £40 each (including post and packing in the UK); cost will increase to reflect actual cost for overseas deliveries

Please reserve me copies of the VO History

Name:

Address:

Email:

Send to: Patrick Bond, Moat Farm House, Long Thurlow, Badwell Ash, Bury St Edmunds, IP31 3JF

Or simply email: VOhistory@diprating.co.uk