

3537 Osler Street

Shaughnessy, Vancouver

A Contemporary Arts and Crafts Masterpiece

From the grand marble-tiled entry lobby with sweeping double staircase to two fairytale turrets overlooking the lights of downtown Vancouver, this magnificent home designed by architect Loy Leyland is a modern interpretation of the original Arts and Crafts mansions built for executives of the Canadian Pacific Railway in the leafy enclave of Shaughnessy over a century ago. Here, exquisite traditional craftsmanship and modern comforts blend to create the finest of old and new.

Exquisite Interiors

Flowing over three levels, the spacious interiors are rich with finely crafted timberwork, sparkling chandeliers, hand-painted ceiling murals, ornate fireplaces and a wealth of bespoke details to create an aura of plushness and comfort that evokes the elegance of an earlier era, while discreetly including every convenience of modern technology. With a romantic circular master suite ensconced in one of the turrets, the interiors include a further 5-bedrooms, 9-bathrooms, a magnificent gourmet kitchen and extensive areas for dining and entertaining on both an intimate and grand scale.

Kitchen Perfection

Located at the rear of the ground level, adjoining a spacious outdoor terrace, the capacious handcrafted timber kitchen features marble and granite benchtops and the finest European appliances. With enough space and storage to accommodate staff and cater for a crowd, it's also beautifully designed as a warm and intimate zone for family to gather, gossip and prepare meals together to be served in the adjoining dining nook or out on the terrace in fine weather.

Luxury Inclusions

A choice of both formal and casual dining and living areas allows this home to cater for all occasions, from intimate family occasions to large gatherings, while additional spaces include a temperature-controlled wine cellar, home gym, billiards room, cinema room, outdoor kitchen and dining area atop the front turret and garaging for 5 vehicles. The elegant main bedroom suite includes a lounge area with fireplace, his and hers bathrooms and a spacious dressing room.

Mature Landscaping

Built just 12 years ago, this magnificent home is surrounded by towering mature deodar and spruce trees, privacy hedging and velvety green, beautifully maintained swathes of lawn. Garden beds contain clipped topiary, formal box hedges and colourful seasonal flower displays. Stone-flagged terraces at the front and rear cater to relaxed outdoor living and dining in the summer months in this exclusive private sanctuary.

icon&co.
BOUTIQUE INC.

iconco.calosler