

Provider Tip of the Week

May 24, 2023

Responding to Children's Comments

When children are accidentally insulting or rude, parents often turn to shaming. Instead, remind parents to separate what children say or do from who they are. While explaining why something may be hurtful, parents can reassure their child that it's OK to make mistakes, and that they're loved unconditionally.

Watch this video
for an example