

Carbon Credit Technology Cookie Policy

This document explains how Carbon Credit Technology (the “Company”, “We”) applies cookies and similar technologies (collectively “Cookies”) when you use website (the “Website”). It explains what these technologies are and why we use them, as well as your rights to control our use of them.

This Cookie Notice forms part of our Privacy Policy, which sets out how and why we collect, store, use and share personal data generally, as well as your rights in relation to your personal data. Please read our Privacy Policy for information on these items. Capitalized terms used in this Cookie Notice but not defined herein have the meanings set forth in our Privacy Policy.

What is a cookie?

Cookies are used by almost all websites. A cookie is a small data file that is stored in users’ web browsers in order to recognize their computers. A web browser is a computer program used to download and display web pages. A cookie is a passive file and cannot collect information from users’ computers or spread computer viruses or other malicious programs.

Cookies can, among other things, be used to prepare statistics of users' use of the site.

Cookies are used to recognize computers in the event of subsequent visits.

Directly identifiable information, such as name, address or similar, is not stored in our cookies. Some third-party cookies collect IP-addresses which is can indirectly identify you as a person.

How do we use cookies?

The following sets out how we use different categories of cookies, as well as information on your options for managing your settings for the data collected by these technologies:

Strictly necessary cookies — these cookies are essential for you to browse the Website and use some of its features, such as browsing security of the Website. Without them, basic functions of our Website would not work. Because these cookies are strictly necessary to deliver our Website’s essential services, you cannot refuse them.

Preferences cookies — also known as “functionality cookies”, these cookies allow Website to remember choices you have made in the past, like what language you prefer or what your user name and password are so you can automatically log in.

Analytics cookies — also known as “performance cookies”, these cookies collect information about how you use Website, like which pages you visited and which links you clicked on. Their sole purpose is to improve our Website functions.

Marketing cookies — these cookies track your online activity to help advertisers deliver more relevant advertising or to limit how many times you see an ad. These cookies can share that information with other organizations or advertisers.

Cookies used to integrate third party services — these cookies are used to integrate third-party functions on the Website, such as videos or social network plug-ins. Note that we have no control over these third-party cookies.
