

Restorative Practice

PB4L (Positive Behaviour for Learning)

a relationship based approach to resolve problems and conflict

what

PB4L (Positive Behaviour for Learning) Restorative Practice is a relationship based approach to explore and resolve problems and conflict resolution. This approach is grounded in beliefs about fairness, mana and the potential of all people.

PB4L Restorative Practice focuses on building and maintaining positive relationships across the kura community and offers best-practice tools and techniques for restoring relationships when things go wrong.

why

- Positive interpersonal relationships are a major influence on behaviour.
- A culture of care supports the mana of all individuals in the school community.
- Cultural responsiveness is key to creating learning communities of mutual respect and inclusion.
- A restorative approach leads to individuals taking responsibility for their own behaviour.

I'm on task and ready to learn

I'm not on task or ready to learn.
My teacher has asked me to correct my behaviour.

I have not corrected my behaviour and am now disrupting learning for others.
If I continue, I will need to have a restorative conversation in my time.

I will have a discussion about my behaviour choice in my break time.
