Fusing calming environments with sophisticated flair, gives Emily Esposito Interiors a halcyon, hybrid edge. Tania Jacobs spoke to the celebrated designer about her inspirational spaces

With a passion for creating environments that promote health, wellness, relaxation, and rejuvenation, Emily Esposito and her team work with the holistic connections that help us to feel grounded and restored. As a member of the U.S. Green Building Council (USGBC) Emily cares deeply about the planet and promoting the use of products that aren't harmful to the natural environment or to our long-term health.

Emily believes in a hands-on collaborative approach to all her design projects. She works closely not only with her clients, but with appointed architects, builders, sub-contractors and vendors to successfully complete the overall design vision as a team. Emily earned her stripes working for a wide range of industry professionals, which has equipped her with a well-rounded, multi-faceted perspective.

With over a decade of experience in the interior design industry spanning California, Washington, Hawaii, and Nevada, Emily is a multi-ASID-award winning interior and furniture designer, working on a vast range of projects in many locations from Lake Tahoe, to the prestigious gated communities of Martis Camp, Lahontan, and Schaffer's Mill in North Lake Tahoe to Kukuia on the island of Kauai, Hawaii.

Beginning her design career in Los Angeles, she gained valuable experience in high-end luxury residential, commercial and furniture design, as well as sustainable and historic preservation. Emily has a passion for furniture design and has custom designed numerous award-winning pieces for her clients.

The multi-award winning studio, specialising in high-end, full-service interior design, new construction, remodels, vacation homes, multi-family developments, commercial, hospitality and custom furniture design, she recently won the 5 Star Designer Award from the America's Property Awards for the Thunderbird Court project.

True to her Californian roots, Emily brings a blend of sophistication and luxurious resort style living to her projects that she infuses with her clients' personalities. As she says: "I want my projects to truly reflect my clients and what home means and feels like to them, as well as being an environment that promotes health, restoration of the soul, and overall well-being." Emily is a proud member of ASID, IIDA, IDS, NKBA, and USGBC.
