Overview

Artemis Connection is a people innovation lab focused on bringing a data-driven, human-centered work culture to your organization's practices, and programs. We use hard data, academic research, and our own experiences with past clients to understand all aspects of your organization's people, culture, and leadership – from the strengths of your culture, to what makes a good leader at your organization, to how your managers lead their teams. Our Founder & CEO is a McKinsey alumnus, and we have a team of former strategists and operators from top-tier firms, plus a diverse board of advisers, including HR officers, executive coaches, academics, entrepreneurs, and former government employees.

Offerings

Intrapreneurship and innovation: We set up metrics so that your organization can know it is improving over time, as well as to ensure your organization has the space to focus on creativity, innovation, and human sustainability. Technology supports you in reaching these goals, but technology isn't enough. We build capabilities behind the scenes so leaders at all levels of your organization can continue the momentum of our engagement and feel confident in reaching your goals.

Goal-setting and measurement: We measure, analyze, and run "learning labs" to understand your employees' experiences so that your teams can make smart, data-driven investments in their people, ultimately unleashing their teams' productivity and innovation.

Professional development: We run immersive professional development for your employees, including boot camps for new managers or employees new to the workforce. We believe that Millennial employees are key to your workforce, and that your managers are key to recruiting, developing, and retaining them. We also help your teams focus on true outcomes, not just outputs, of this professional development.

Resourcing: We make strategic connections and find top talent so you can focus on your real work. Sometimes you just need a strategic thinker on the ground, owning your problem and getting the work down. We can place a "job share" team in your organization to cover extended leaves, supplement the team while you wait for the right hire, etc. Because of our flexible model, we also can supplement an experienced consultant with someone with deep operational experience to give you a powerhouse team. We focus on Director, Senior Director, and VP roles.

Who we serve

Talent is a strategic asset and also can be a competitive advantage. We have worked across many sectors (e.g., healthcare, entertainment, venture capital, and more) and across all organization sizes (from start-up to Fortune 100). However, we keep our client names and their unique situations confidential.

You may be a good fit if you are a:

- Progressive leader who believes talent is a strategic asset
- Rapidly growing company wanting to establish and set up best practices
- Investor, including venture capitalist, desiring to support portfolio companies with the right systems and habits
