- One important ingredient in professional preparation is:

'specifically building an appreciation for the value of stories shared. Exchanging stories is one of the most uniquely human experiences.'

David Shapiro, 2017

- Being unable to share one's story can isolate a person, making one feel other than, or less than, human.

David Shapiro, 2017

- 'Clinicians need to understand the personal and professional usefulness of telling, hearing, and sharing stories; describe how stories provide an opportunity to see through the eyes of others'.

David Shapiro, 2017
