Soil Type of Vineyard: Schist and Granite

Fermentation Method: Stainless steel

Aging Method: Not barrel aged

After a cold and dry winter came a rainy spring, which gave us back the moisture that the soil needs for the vine to start its vegetative cycle. Due to the temperatures during the spring and some weeks of the summer, being mild, the cycle suffered some delay, even so, the plants had a good development. The maturation was slow and regular, as a result we have a fresh wine with aromatic intensity.
