

ELROD ELEMENTARY SCHOOL third-grade teacher Vallina Holston had her students describe Mount St. Helen's eruption. Danny Briskin's effort, which sounded like a limerick, was the best one. Danny is the 9-year-old son of Stewart and Sandy Briskin of 1028 Third Ave. W., Kalispell.

"There once was a mount named St. Helen;

"Whose ashes began to start smellin'.

"When it sprung a leak,

"It blew off its peak;

"And that was the end of St. Helen."

A few rough spots, but the potential is there.

Others submitted by Mrs. Holston as the class bests were works written by Suzy Young, Jaime Clarke, Steven Oliver and Chantel Young.
