Our management team

Professor Emeritus Tom Hecht is regarded as a leading authority in Aquaculture and Fisheries Science, throughout Africa and the West Indian Ocean region. He brings over 40 years of science, research and industry development experience to Advance Africa. Tom is highly regarded by his peers and has published over 150 peer reviewed scientific papers.

Fred Formanek has in excess of 30 years' experience in project and business development and has served on numerous boards in Southern Africa for companies specialising in agriculture and aquaculture. Fred brings supremely-grounded large-scale project supervision and business development experience to the group.

James McCafferty heads up our consulting division. He is currently pursuing his PhD in Ichthyology, and has over 10 years of consulting experience in fisheries and aquaculture. Combined with his scientific expertise, James' strong strategic vision and leadership skills allow him to provide oversight to the overall operations, strategies and objectives we pursue.
