

10:00 - 11:30

Aligning food systems with the SDGs and Paris: What is already happening across Europe?

This session focuses on creating an interactive exchange between participants to share how civil society is already working across Europe towards aligning food systems with the climate targets of the Paris Agreement and other Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). Bring your websites, pictures, video or a powerpoint slide to share your work and inspire each other.

11:30 - 11:45

Break

11:45 - 13:15

The urgency for greater ambition and collaboration: Why do we need to catalyse even bigger waves of change and focus on animal source food in Europe?

By Kathrin Gutmann Europe Beyond Coal Campaign, Nikolai Pushkarev European Public Health Alliance

We will be setting the scene in this session by bringing at the forefront of our minds 'the why' we are doing the work we do. Focusing on the reasons why transforming animal source foods in Europe needs to change for us to meet the Sustainable Development Goals and the Paris Climate Agreement. We will hear about the power of movements to bring about social change and jointly explore what is needed to increase collaboration and ambition among civil society across Europe.

13:15 - 14:15

Lunch

14:15 - 15:45

Root causes: What is driving our overconsumption of unsustainable animal source food in Europe?

By Pedro M. Herrera Entretantos Foundation, Serife Erol-Vogel Institute of Economic and Social Research, Benoit Granier Climate Action Network - France, Brian Cook University of Oxford

In this session a panel of experts will investigate why unsustainable animal source foods are currently perceived as desirable, affordable and accessible in Europe. Following the panel we will break out into groups to explore: What are the root causes we need to address in Europe to make a transformation of animal source food consumption and production desirable, affordable and accessible?

15:45 - 16:00

Break

16:00 - 17:30

The change we want to create in the world: What does our final destination look like?

This session is all about the dream we have for the future in relation to animal source foods in Europe. In a guided visioning exercise we will jointly identify key elements of the changes we want to see in the future.

10:00 - 11:30

Overview: What are the already-identified leverage points to transform animal source foods in our food environments?

We will spark our thinking by presenting a map of our current system that leads to overconsumption of unsustainable and unhealthy levels of animal-source foods in Europe and a set of levers that could help align this system with the Sustainable Development Goals and the Paris Climate Agreement. We want to hear from you what other levers or strategies are out there and what we should focus on based on the level of urgency and where our energy is drawn to.

11:30 - 11:45

Break

11:45 - 13:15

Parallel Session I: Changing local food environments with subnational actors

Last month HFHP hosted workshops to investigate three leverage points to transform the production and consumption of animal sourced foods, notably creating retailer champions, changing local food environments with sub-national actors and engaging private investors. In this session we will dive deeper into 3 key ideas that emerged during the "Changing local food environments with subnational actors" workshop and look at where and how we can increasingly work together moving forward.

11:45 - 13:15

Parallel Session I: Creating Retailer Champions

Last month HFHP hosted workshops to investigate three leverage points to transform the production and consumption of animal sourced foods, notably creating retailer champions, changing local food environments with sub-national actors and engaging private investors. In this session we will dive deeper into 3 key ideas that emerged during the "Creating retailer champions" workshop and look at where and how we can increasingly work together moving forward.

13:15 - 14:15

Lunch

14:15 - 15:45

Parallel Session 2: How can we change private money flows to support a transformation of animal-sourced foods?

Last month HFHP hosted workshops to investigate three leverage points to transform the production and consumption of animal sourced foods, notably creating retailer champions, changing local food environments with sub-national actors and engaging private investors. In this session we will dive deeper into key ideas that emerged during the "Engaging private investors" workshop and look at where and how we can increasingly work together moving forward.

14:15 - 15:45

Parallel Session 2: How can we change the narratives and deeply held beliefs that keep us in the status quo?

By Jean-Luc Blakey Food, Nature, and Climate Dialogue

Across Europe our overconsumption of unsustainable animal source foods is driven by problematic narratives questioning whether diets with less and better animal source foods might affect our health, whether livestock is really that important when it comes to climate change and whether high levels of animal source foods are not essential parts of our European cultures. We will start off this session with a presentation of research on the narratives used by the livestock sector and how we can counter them. After which you will be asked to jointly develop key narratives for specific audiences that could replace the prevalent frames.

15:45 - 16:00

Break

16:00 - 17:00

From Ideas to Actions: Where should CSOs and funders focus their energy to create transformation of animal-source foods?

This is the session where it all comes together. In this session we will reflect on what we have heard during the forum and identify what CSOs and funders should do over the next year that fits with their current objectives, and helps with building a movement?