OVERVIEW

DECIEM manufactures and trades in beauty and cosmetic products. Headquartered in Toronto, Canada, the company has gone from strength to strength, and now boasts of 5 brands and over 50 products in the beauty segment. Since launching operations in 2013, DECIEM has exponentially grown its geographical presence across 30 markets globally.

However, as DECIEM spread their geographical footprint, they also faced the challenge of onboarding certified vendors and solutions providers across their facilities, especially in the newly-ventured Southeast Asian markets.

Business Challenge

DECIEM faced two challenges in contractor management. First, their success in the market meant that they needed to transition into a larger manufacturing site. As a result, they began to use more contractors to help with renovations and larger production orders. On a second front, they faced the task of onboarding contractors overseas, which was a unique challenge in and of itself. While expanding, the company found it increasingly difficult to identify and source contractors for their facilities. Additionally, with a large number of new contractors required across their global operations, contractors across centers, the volume of documentation required for prequalification and standardization of processes was stifling the in-house teams and causing errors on various levels. In short, DECIEM realized the need to outsource its contractor management function to save time and resources, while also reducing the scope of errors considerably.

DECIEM needed a specialized partner who could provide contractor management solutions. In Avetta, DECIEM found exactly what they were looking for.

Contractor Onboarding: Delay in finding and employing vendors

Documentation: Immense volume of documents for prequalification

Global Expansion: Lack of a global network of contractors for foreign offices
