Some users have positive experiences with DoorDash, saying it is great for those who cannot drive, like disabled individuals.However, some users have encountered issues with menu prices and accidental charges. They recommend being cautious when ordering. One user had a poor experience with DoorDash, as their order was not delivered despite the app stating it had been delivered. The app's been gettin some updates to make it run smoother, but one thing they still need to work on is makin it easier to leave reviews. Sometimes the typing function don't work so well on iPhones, and it's a pain when you're tryin to give context with a review. If DD really wants people to use their app, they should make it more user-friendly, especially for typin and leavin reviews.I'm taking this opportunity to leave a review and provide feedback on my recent experience with DoorDash. I initially gave it a 5-star rating, but unfortunately, things didn't go as planned. I ordered a cookie tote from McDonald's through the app, which arrived with only 7 cookies instead of the expected 13. My dasher also informed me that she had to wait over 15 minutes for the order.When I requested a refund, DoorDash denied it twice, citing that my issue had already been reviewed. Frustrated and disappointed, I contacted their online support team, but they didn't seem interested in helping or investigating further. They even ended our chat abruptly when I presented evidence of the problem.As someone who values fairness and customer service, I'm extremely dissatisfied with DoorDash's response. It feels like they're not willing to work with customers or provide refunds for legitimate issues. After this experience, I've lost trust in the app and will not be using it again.
