Please Do Contribute to The Internet Archive's Mission The Internet Archive is a nonprofit organization dedicated to ensuring universal access to quality information. We build and maintain our own systems without charging for access, selling user data, or running advertisements. We are grateful for the support of just one in a thousand users who contribute financially. Although not everyone can donate at this time, if you can afford to contribute on Wednesday, we assure you that it will be used wisely. Our resources are vital for knowledge seekers worldwide; therefore, please consider contributing if you find our work useful.
