Coupe de france football 2025

The 2024-25 Coupe de France is the 108th season of France's main football cup competition. The tournament, organized by the French Football Federation (FFF), will feature all clubs in French football, as well as teams from overseas departments and territories. Due to unrest in New Caledonia, local teams will not participate.Paris Saint-Germain, the defending champions, have won the title a record 15 times. The competition has been structured into several rounds, with the Regional leagues handling the first six rounds and the FFF taking over from round three onwards. The final takes place on May 24, 2025.The tournament structure includes various divisions, with teams entering at different stages based on their league level. For example, teams from Championnat National 3 enter at round three, while those from Championnat National enter at the fifth round. The competition will feature a mix of teams from across France and its overseas territories, with some exceptions due to local bans or promotions.Overall, the 2024-25 Coupe de France promises to be an exciting season for football fans in France, with many top teams competing for the coveted title.The Corsica tournament as the final round features a unique set of teams. The AS Montferrand Football U20 team from Saint Pierre and Miquelon, Tahiti's AS Dragon, and Mayotte's Diables Noirs are among those participating. Unfortunately, New Caledonia could not send a representative due to recent riots.The 155 qualified clubs, including 18 Ligue 2 teams and overseas representatives from Mayotte and Tahiti, will compete in the tournament. The rules dictate that only one team per overseas region can play at home. A draw determines which teams travel to Tahiti for Round 7 and French Guiana and Reunion for Round 8.Mainland clubs like US Avranches, US Thionville Lusitanos, and USSA Vertou will face their opponents in Tahiti. The top-ranked teams from Reunion, Martinique, and Guadeloupe will also participate in internal matches to decide who advances to Round 8. FC Rouen 1899 received a bye due to New Caledonia's withdrawal and automatically qualified for the next round.Samartinaie faced off against RC Saint-Josep Fort de France, with Annette scoring in the 45th minute and Barba in the 59th.
